

Alderman Urges Regional Housing Planning

66,000 Coming—to What?

By DON GAIN

Ald. Edith Gunning of Saanich made an urgent plea Wednesday for over-all planning for the Greater Victoria region to take care of the 66,000 additional residents it will have in the next 13 years.

According to projections, the capital region will have a population of 251,000 by 1981, she said.

"How will they be housed? Will there be a well-thought-out pattern of development, with open spaces and an orderly pattern of growth?" she asked.

"How many families will be able to afford to buy a serviced lot, even within the next five years?"

These questions point up the need for over-all planning now, Mrs. Gunning said.

"We have to know the answers, and the time to get started on the planning is now."

Mrs. Gunning, who attended the Canadian Conference on Housing in Toronto last month, has made a report which Saanich council is studying.

As part of her report, she outlined implications of the conference's conclusions for the Greater Victoria region.

"The need for over-all planning in this region, with adequate provision of serviced land, is obvious," she said.

The Sourcebook on Housing in Canada shows that from 1960 to 1966 the increase in price of a serviced lot in metropolitan Victoria was 101.6 per cent. This compares with the next two highest increases in metropolitan areas — Windsor, 87.9 per cent and Hull, 68.6.

"I understand that much of the groundwork has already been done for the preparation of an over-all plan for the capital region," she said.

"Now that the regional board and the municipalities are moving forward on developing sewerage facilities, I believe that, through the Capital Region Planning Board, serious discussions should be promoted to decide on the main purposes of such

U.S. Coal Mine

Hopes Fade For 78

MANNINGTON, W. Va. (UPI) — Explosions and fires ravaged a four-mile stretch of a huge soft coal mine Wednesday, trapping 78 miners 700 feet underground. No contact was made with them and hopes for their survival faded.

Twenty-one other men escaped. Five were sent to hospital for treatment of shock.

The first and largest explosion at the Consolidation Coal Co.'s Mannington mine occurred at the Llewellyn portal about 5:30 a.m. EST. as the 99 men reported to be on duty were winding up the graveyard shift.

SMALLER BLASTS

Four more relatively smaller blasts followed during the morning hours, blasting off fires that devoured seams of coal along four miles of the seven-mile-long main corridor.

Another explosion shook the mine shortly before 11 p.m. at the Mod's Run portal, where workmen had just completed sealing off ventilation in an attempt to cut the flow of fresh air sustaining the fires. The workmen had evacuated the portal and none was injured.

Prior to that, mine officials said no rescue attempt could be made before Thursday morning at the earliest because of smoke, fire and the threat of further explosions.

CAUSE UNCERTAIN

There was no official word on the cause of the explosions, although it was suspected either methane gas or coal dust was to blame.

One of the survivors, Alva Davis, 26, of Wallace, W. Va., said later he heard the first explosion and "they were bad ones."

"It was a horrifying experience that I don't want to go through again," Davis said. "I thank God that I am out here and not back in there."

The mine is located in Northern West Virginia near the border with southwestern Pennsylvania and just 20 miles from Morgantown, W. Va., where 361 men were killed by an explosion Dec. 6, 1907, in the nation's worst coal mine disaster.

Stamps Thump Riders

With their offensive unit riddled by injuries, the Calgary defensive team took charge Wednesday night to lead Stampede to a thrilling 25-12 overtime win over Saskatchewan Roughriders and into the Grey Cup final. Details on Page 14.

Hydrofoil Ripped, Five Hurt

SEATTLE (AP) — Five persons were injured when the hydrofoil Victoria slammed into an unidentified underwater object Wednesday, causing $250,000 damage to the 65-foot vessel.

None of the injuries appeared too serious, although one passenger, Miss Charlene Hardman of Burton, Wash., was taken to hospital for observation. She was thrown against a bulkhead.

The accident occurred off Port Townsend, Wash., when the vessel was southbound from Victoria to Seattle at about 30 knots. One crewman said the impact was "like hitting a brick wall."

A strut was sheared off and the entire port foil, which helps support the craft when it rises from the surface, was ripped away in the collision.

William Niedermaier, president of Northwest Hydrofoil Lines, gave the damage estimate, and said the Victoria will enter a shipyard here for repairs today. The vessel was carrying 21 passengers and three crew members. The injured included Mrs. Hertha Schreiner of Tonsberg, Norway, who suffered a knee injury, R. W. Lachman Sr. of Seattle, wrenched leg, Mrs. Buddy Rains of Seattle, cut knee, and stewardess Jan Hawley, a possible wrist fracture.

"It was pretty bad," Miss Hawley said. "I flew almost 10 feet and was knocked out for a second."

Eriling Beck, captain of the Victoria, said he was not sure what the craft hit. The weather was clear and sea conditions good, he said.

The Victoria, which has been in regular service between Seattle and Victoria since May, made it here under her own power but was four hours late.

BONN—A meeting of financial leaders from 10 leading industrial nations of the West broke up in apparent deadlock early today at the end of its first session.

Another session was scheduled for today to continue urgent discussion on monetary problems brought to crisis point by the weakness of the French franc and the strength of the West German mark.

A member of the West German delegation told reporters the problem is that countries whose currencies are weak have not said how they intend to contribute to international efforts to restore currency stability.

But the countries whose currencies have been under attack from speculators — Britain, France and the United States — have voiced the opinion that the West German mark should be revalued upward, he said.

It now looks as if the realization is beginning to spread that Bonn definitely has no intention of revaluing its currency to reduce a huge trade surplus which is one of the main causes of the current financial crisis, West German sources said.

One Swedish delegate told reporters: "There is something of a deadlock."

The attitude of the West German delegation is it is not West Germany but other countries that are in difficulties, informed sources said.

Most major money markets were shut to check speculators' attacks on the franc and rising pressure against the dollar and the pound in the second international monetary crisis of 1968.

COLONIST 500 FUND

Christmas Difficult For Many

By DON COLLINS

The other day someone mentioned Christmas in a normal, happy tone and Frank greeted the comment with a pleasant smile.

It was not easy. The smile served as a mask for a brave man. In years gone by, Christmas had meant much joy for Frank and his family.

But that was before the crippling illness came. This year Frank will face Christmas in a wheelchair, stripped of the earning power of a once-proud tradesman and painfully sensitive to the fact his wife has had to take on the role of family leader.

"No matter what happens, Christmas will be a difficult day for him to face," said a social worker.

Frank is a young man, and accepting his illness is that much more difficult.

His four children knew him as a good provider and they respect him. They do not want him hurt any more deeply, and they refuse to show the sadness that is in each of them as Christmas approaches. They do not expect presents this year, nor do they ask for any.

There are other children like Frank's in Greater Victoria. Too many others.

But there is something else in Greater Victoria that may take just a little of the emptiness out of Christmas for these unfortunates.

It is the Colonist 500 Fund.

This is the 12th consecutive year that the fund is attempting to spread a little happiness through households where happiness is missing. By Wednesday, $1,620 had been collected for that purpose.

Money donated by Colonist readers will be distributed to 500 families selected by the Christmas Bureau. The bureau is a Community Chest agency.

Last year more than $17,000 was contributed. Each family received $33.

Donations can be brought or mailed to the Colonist, 2631 Douglas. Downtown shoppers can take them to Avis-Rent-a-Car, 800 Douglas. Envelopes should bear the name of the fund.

The fund has proved popular because of two features: There are no pressure tactics and no administration costs. It is set up as an uncomplicated way of providing help at Christmas for people like Frank, his wife and their children—people facing a bleak Christmas through no fault of their own.

Upper House Doomed

● British House moves to weaken Lords. Page 8.

QUEBEC (CP) — The Quebec government Wednesday proposed legislation to abolish the legislative council and change the name of the legislative assembly to "the national assembly of the province of Quebec."

The Liberal Opposition welcomed the proposal to abolish the 101-year-old council, only provincial upper house in Canada.

The government bill for major legislature reform says:

"The legislature of the province of Quebec shall consist of the lieutenant-governor and the national assembly of the province of Quebec."

"It shall exercise all the powers vested in the legislature of the province of Quebec, consisting of the lieutenant-governor and two houses called the legislative council of Quebec and the legislative assembly of Quebec."

Opposition Leader Jean Lesage told reporters he approves the principle of the bill to abolish the upper house and leave a single elective chamber, the same structure as

Sheriff Needs Cash To Buy More Pot

PORT ORCHARD, Wash. (AP) — Sheriff Art Morien asked the county commissioners Wednesday to provide his office with $300 so he can buy "some pot."

He said his deputies had to continually dig into their own pockets for money to pay informers to make "buys" from people peddling marijuana, so they could be caught.

Manned Trip to Moon 'Risky, Silly, Wasteful'

LONDON (AP) — A leading British space expert said Wednesday night that on a scientific basis the plan by the United States to send three astronauts around the moon this Christmas is dangerous, silly and wasteful.

Sir Bernard Lovell, director of the Jodrell Bank Observatory, which has specialized in tracking moon shots, made the comment in a television interview with the BBC.

"On a scientific basis this project is wasteful and silly," Lovell said. "We've reached the stage with automatic landings when it's not necessary to risk human life to get information about the moon."

Within a few years this information could be obtained by automatic, unmanned instruments."

Lovell said "the worst hazards" of the Christmas flight already have been pointed out by the U.S. National Aeronautics and Space Administration. Lovell listed these as:

"When the astronauts eject from lunar orbit they might not be able to return to earth because of engine failure."

"There is a risk of radiation from the sun."

"When they do return to earth the very high speed of re-entry much higher than on previous flights, must be dangerous."

66,000 Coming—to What?

a plan and the principles to be followed."

Mrs. Gunning stressed the importance of more detailed work with each municipality with a view to producing a broad plan for the region.

"Within the framework of this plan, land could be held in reserve for residential development, and serviced lands be released on a uniform basis, so as to land stability to the land market. "Senior government financing in land assembly, land servicing and land banks, could be used to bring down the cost of serviced land."

The area doesn't need too large a land bank, Mrs. Gunning continued. "In the Community Welfare Council housing report, we suggested this be done at the regional level."

"The purpose would be to bring the cost of land down. Capital costs would be met by provincial and federal governments and, with the municipalities foregoing land taxes, land could be sold at cost."

Where the amount of land

was limited, the market was sensitive to the release of even a moderate amount of land to development, Mrs. Gunning said.

She was pleased with what she heard from the experts at the Toronto conference, she said.

"What they told us endorsed our procedures, viewpoint and proposals of the Community Welfare Council report on housing, which was prepared before we went to the conference," she said.

In response to the claims of overly restrictive zoning and building bylaws and involved processes of approval, Mrs. Gunning suggested:

• Periodic discussions among builders, designers, planners, developers and government officials, elected and appointed.

• Constant attempt to keep subdivision and zoning bylaws viable to new concepts in building types, such as cluster development, row and terraced housing and ownership through condominiums.

• Readiness to consider waiving of certain bylaws in favor of integrated development.

• Provision of incentives to municipal staff for major breakthroughs in improving and simplifying procedures.

• Issuing of pamphlets such as those produced by Search planning department on zoning and the Citizen and Subdivision.

• As suggested in the Community Welfare Council report, public housing for the region could be initiated at the regional level. This program could be co-ordinated with three types of housing through the Community Housing Committee:

• Housing developed and managed by non-profit groups — churches, societies, service clubs.

• Housing developed by employee groups and labor unions.

• Co-operative housing, which may be initiated by employee groups or more broadly for the general public who wish to buy into the co-operative. Local government should stand ready to help non-profit groups, perhaps in obtaining suitable building sites.

The program should include housing development by building the private sector of business. A real attempt by government to plan ahead and co-operate with the private sector would help them to cater adequately to housing needs within a quality environment.

Mrs. Gunning told of plans in other provinces which enabled tenants of public housing to purchase their units. The monthly rent was considered a payment on the house. If the tenant sold within a limited time, the mortgage forgiveness was revoked.

"Probably a part of public housing stock should be acquired or built with an ownership scheme in view. However, it seems to me that decent rental housing should be first of all provided for low-income groups and, at the same time, means of making home ownership possible for the $5,000 to $8,000 annual income group should be explored."

More economical use of land in this region would bring down the cost of housing, she said. In some parts of Eastern Canada, houses were being built on 40-foot lots.

"This type of development, I think, required accompanying open space in order to maintain quality of environment. Row and terraced housing, each unit for sale under the Strata Titles Act, I regard as a preferable approach."

The responsibility of getting the show on the road lies with the municipal and regional governments, Mrs. Gunning believed.

• To initiate a well-thought-out and varied program of public housing.

• To plan ahead on an over-all basis, with continuing provision of serviced land.

• To co-operate with the private sector for the best land use and to lessen costly delays.

With provincial and federal governments:

• To arrange for a continuing supply of mortgage funds.

• To provide adequate funds to finance public housing and land assembly plans initiated at the local level.

• To provide subsidy to enable certain income groups to use the housing market.

• To sponsor new concepts in housing which will meet specific needs and are not being produced by the private sector.

of the metal preferred not to sell. Gold closed in London at $40.55 U.S. an ounce, up 32 1/2 cents for the day. The closing Zurich quotations ranged from $40.25 to $40.50.

The U.S. dollar and the British pound were affected by the near-panic flight of speculators' capital from France. A West German spokesman said that on Friday, Monday and Tuesday the German federal bank paid out a total $1,800,000 worth of marks — rumored due to rise in value — in exchange for other currencies.

U.S. treasury sources in Washington said dollars accounted for more than half the sum traded.

To cool the fever, France and West Germany ordered their foreign exchange markets closed for the rest of the week and Britain said its money markets would be closed today.

Canada was represented by Finance Minister Edgar Benson and Louis Raminsky, governor of the Bank of Canada.

The other nations participating were Belgium, Britain, Italy, Japan, The Netherlands and Sweden. Switzerland sent an observer.

Guenther Diehl, spokesman for the West German government, said the discussion centred on whether the franc would be devalued. Possible international support for the franc was also a topic, he added.

A possible compromise would be an agreement for temporary support until president-elect Richard Nixon of the U.S. takes office and the new U.S. administration could join in a review of the whole international monetary tangle.

Britain and West Germany are deeply involved. The West Germans are under pressure to revalue the mark. The British pound is weak and a devaluation of the franc might weaken it still more.

France was the main problem.

Confidence in the franc has been dropping since big wage increases were granted to end riots and strikes last spring.

France began losing its big stock of gold and foreign currency as Frenchmen decided it was safer to keep their money abroad.

Many experts think the mark should be worth more than its present official value, a shade under 25 U.S. cents. If the value were increased, West German exports would be dearer, imports cheaper, and the surplus lower. But the Bonn government has repeatedly refused to raise the value of its currency. That would hurt business and foul up arrangements within the European Common Market.

Instead, the West Germans Tuesday announced increased taxes on exports and reduced taxes on imports. This is designed to have the same effect as an upward revaluation, but is more flexible.

The tax measures should help France, which is West Germany's main trading partner. But clearly they were not enough.

other provincial legislatures in Canada.

But the former premier said the name change to national assembly amounts to copying the French, who have a national assembly.

Premier Jean-Jacques Bertrand told reporters that the legislative assembly would be called the national assembly because the new name "is more representative of all Quebec society."

Told that one MLA described the proposed name change as an empty gesture that would hurt Quebec by scaring off U.S. investors, Mr. Bertrand said:

"That makes me laugh. What's in a name? So it comes from France. How about the House of Commons in Ottawa? Where does that come from? England. Has that scared off investors?"

Rene Levesque, leader of the separatist Parti Quebecois, said the proposed name change is "perfect and I only hope that we don't stop at words but get to reform at the bottom of things."

Cold Milk Fine for Baby

By JOSEPH MOLNER, MD

Dear Dr. Molner: Is there any harm in giving an infant cold milk? Does it damage the stomach in any way?

I have been giving my baby cold milk since he was a month and a half old. He never has cramps or tummy ache and spits up less and is more content.

Recently another mother breastfed this cold milk. Is not good for a baby, that the baby is suffering and has to have warm milk. Also that "everyone knows warm milk is best."

Mrs. D.C.

It used to be supposed that milk had to be warm; medical studies more recently show that milk does not have to be warmed for a baby.

This does not alter the fact that babies may have preferences. If a youngster consistently pushes the nipple away if the milk is cold, but not when it is warm, then he prefers warm milk. So give it to him. Other babies are the opposite.

Your Good Health

I would be dubious about giving a baby ice-cold milk, particularly if he already was used to warm milk. But the important point is that cold milk is not harmful.

Dear Dr. Molner: Have you any articles on a poison called salmonella? I can't find it in my dictionary but need to know about it. — H.C.

Salmonella is a class of germs. (There are many varieties of salmonella, the typhoid and paratyphoid germs being two.)

Salmonella infection results as a rule from eating food tainted with the germ. It takes three to four days for the germ to multiply in the intestinal tract to the point of causing illness.

Salmonella, while not the commonest form of food poisoning, is a very common. The commonest is food poisoning from another germ, staphylococcus aureus, which develops much more rapidly, in about four hours instead of days.

As the staph germ multiplies, it releases toxins which do the dirty work.

Simple Solution

THE MANOEUVRING FOR PRESTIGE by the National Liberation Front, the political arm of the South Vietnamese Communist fighting force, must be a painful embarrassment to the United States. For it was Washington's decision to allow the NLF equal status with the North Vietnamese delegation at the expanded negotiations in Paris, aimed at settlement of the long and bloody war. Reaction of South Vietnam was entirely predictable. The government refuses to recognize the legitimacy of the NLF and will not treat with its delegates, except conditionally.

There is no doubt that pressure is being put on President Nguyen Van Thieu to submit to the conference arrangement. News services and special correspondents, obviously informed from American sources, are increasingly prone to hang the full blame for the break-down of the negotiation machinery on the South Vietnamese president. This is unfair.

From President Thieu's point of view there is very much more at stake for the South Vietnamese than for any other party to the dispute. Hanoi can lose nothing by any terms of settlement, and neither can the Viet Cong. But they have much to gain.

For the government of Saigon there is grave danger in any sort of compromise. This should be obvious to the Americans.

Recognition of the NLF immediately gives it the status of nothing less than an authentic opposition party in South Vietnam, whereas the lawful administration considers it not only a creature of Hanoi's creation but a part of the team responsible for the invasion of the country. Saigon's contention is that this is not a civil war, and indeed the American presence is only excused by the fact that it is a response to an appeal to meet aggression from the Communist North.

The NLF is not likely to accede to the Saigon demand that its representatives should sit only as a part of the Hanoi delegation to Paris. Having won the United States' acceptance, the NLF cannot afford to surrender such status.

A possible solution to this stalemate would be the American concurrence with President Thieu's suggestion that his government assume the position of chief bargaining agent in negotiations. If this small gesture would get the conference back in business it should appeal to Washington. After all, the Saigon government is the one chiefly concerned with the issues and American compliance would in no way injure that nation's prestige.

Meanwhile, the NLF grabs every chance to maintain the initiative, with Hanoi's compliance, so that a situation is created where its delegates assume a position of seniority. President Thieu can hardly be expected, therefore, to allow his government to assume an inferior one.

Let Washington do the generous thing which, in this case, seems only practical. Or is such a solution too simple for the diplomats?

'As Soon as Possible'

PRIME MINISTER PIERRE TRUDEAU said in the election campaign that he favored recognition of Communist China "as soon as possible." It may have surprised some Canadians therefore that in the General Assembly voting on the bid to seat Communist China in the United Nations, Canada showed itself no more favorably disposed toward this proposal than in the past. It abstained from voting on the seating resolution, which was defeated 58 to 44. It abstained from voting on an Italian resolution calling for committee study of Chinese representation, a move which it had supported in the previous two years. It voted in favor of treating the Peking representation as an "important matter" requiring a two-thirds majority for passage.

We are reminded, however, of the extent to which Mr. Trudeau's campaign was an offering of unknown quantities and qualities. One of the prime minister's first promises was that a Liberal government would review foreign policy in the light of changing times. This is being done and the country still has only hints of the government's intentions.

We recall also the degree to which the prime minister surrounded the recognition of Communist China, specifically, with conditions.

Mr. Trudeau favored any measures including recognition "on suitable terms" to intensify contacts with Peking, he said. He added that he would also want to see continued recognition of Nationalist China. He added again that before recognition of the Communist regime could take place, Canada would have to know what freedom diplomats would have in China, what access they would have to the country, what freedom of the press there would be and what trade, tourist and cultural arrangements could be made.

The prime minister furthermore was a little concerned about the U.S. reaction, but, he said, "until I get a firm mandate, I don't wish to make any major changes in Canadian foreign policy."

To any who might have thought that by their votes they were giving a Liberal government a mandate to move speedily toward recognition of the government of the world's most populous country, it must now be clear that they were giving a mandate for a question mark.

THE MONTHLY BULLETIN of the International Press Institute reports that a journalist has been banned from Switzerland's parliamentary press gallery for six months for naming two National Councilors (members of Parliament) who fell asleep during a recent debate.

The president of the National Council — the Swiss equivalent of Speaker — made it clear that he considered the "naming of names" as "bringing Parliament into discredit."

He added that it was possible that the two parliamentarians might only have been "meditating." It might be mentioned that in Canada's legislative bodies, both federal and provincial, "meditating" of this kind on the part of elected members is not at all uncommon.

However, few members of our press galleries make a serious issue of the matter, perhaps in the cynical belief that some members are every bit as useful to the country asleep as they are awake.

Parliament Preoccupied by Biafra

By RICHARD JACKSON, Columnist Ottawa Bureau

DIFFICULT if not altogether impossible to believe that the House of Commons, in its nine working weeks of this odddest of sessions, has been a place possessed.

For with all there is for the Commons to work on and worry about, nothing—but absolutely nothing—has claimed so much of its time and attention in the daily question period as Biafra.

Day after repetitive day, without a break through all its first 45 working days, it has fretted and fumed about Biafra.

Questions about it have exceeded 500. Scores of pages of Hansard have been covered with it. A special Commons committee has agonized over it. When Hansard, that word-for-word record of what says what in the Commons, issues its initial sessional index, no other topic will have anything approaching the listing of Biafra.

Not federal-provincial relations. Not regional disparity. Not increased taxes. Not decreased defence.

Not anything. And nothing, no other single issue so endlessly worked over in the daily question period, has caused such an upsurge in those inner-party councils, the Commons caucuses.

Majority of the Conservatives have been raging at Robert Stanfield for making so much of it.

Minority of Liberals have been fretting that Prime Minister Trudeau has made so little of it.

And only the New Democrats seem to have been satisfied, more than content perhaps, that Biafra has been causing the two major parties so much trouble.

First of more than 500 Biafra questions was asked on Parliament's first regular sessional working day last September 13 by Mr. Stanfield.

What, he asked the prime minister, was Canada doing about Biafra?

The question astonished both the floor and the galleries of the House. That the Conservative leader in the days since his June election disaster could think of nothing more meaningful to Canadians than Biafra was all but unbelievable.

The prime minister, as understood as anyone else in the Commons that day, didn't rightly know.

So External Affairs Minister Sharp took the question, reported that Canada was trying to help end the Nigeria-Biafra civil war and providing relief for both sides.

And so it went, through the nine succeeding weeks and longer, endless repetitive questions about Biafra.

The odd thing has been that it was only a tiny group of Tories—aligned with Toronto New Democrat Andrew Brewin—managing to all but monopolize the daily question period and in a strange way, hypnotize the House.

In all those weeks there was so much else so much more important—taxes, medicare, defence, wheat sales, trade, strikes, housing, prices, costs, inflation, separatism, language rights, transport, a hundred other vital issues—but in the daily question period, Biafra mesmerized the members.

Mesmerized the few, the very, very few who wouldn't leave it alone, and mesmerized the many, the very, very many who wished they would.

The reason has been odd. Majority of the Conservatives have been getting an impatient playback from the public asking if there aren't other more urgent things than Biafra for Parliament to ponder.

A minority of Liberals are waiting that the public really cares more about Biafra than any other issue at the moment—and that the government is being criticized for being callous.

It's a case, all over again, of a highly organized and extremely vocal minority—the "bleeding hearts," as the prime minister has termed them—monopolizing Parliament's grudging time and the public's reluctant attention.

Purging time, too—but they haven't seemed to worry much in the House, about what might be expected to be the burning issues in their own constituencies, or even their regions, which just happen to be the victims of what's known as "disparity." But maybe it's not really all that funny—at least to their constituents.

There have been hard feelings expressed in the privacy of the party caucuses about this obsession with Biafra.

And expressed not-so-privately in the lobbies where a majority of MPs protest "don't look at me—you won't catch me bug-ging about Biafra."

Finally, there have been even less-private echoes of majority dissent with the minority monopoly heard in the House.

Maritime Conservative Bob Coates put it best: "We have spent far too much time on things abroad where we have no control—such as the civil war in Nigeria—and not nearly enough time on things where we do have control here at home."

And Coates has been far from alone.

The first order of business is to get a constitutional amendment out of the judiciary subcommittee of which Sen. Birch Bayh is chairman. Bayh has long pushed for electoral change. He has most to do with getting through the 25th Amendment to the Constitution providing for selection of a vice-president when, as in the instance of Lyndon Johnson and John F. Kennedy, the previous No. 2 had inherited the presidency.

From that to finish that took something over three years, even though the country had been alerted to the danger of leaving the succession to pass to the Speaker of the House and the president pro tem of the Senate.

Experts in the difficult process of amending the Constitution see only a slim chance of getting two-thirds of Congress to approve a reform amendment at the 1969 session. If this should happen, ratification by the legislatures of three-fourths of the states could not be completed until some time late in 1971, since the provisions in most states is for legislative sessions every other year in odd-numbered years.

The simplest formula is abolition of the electoral college so that votes are cast directly for a candidate for president. This would do away with the electoral college under the present uncertain language of the Constitution can put their votes up for grabs when neither of the major party candidates gets the required 270 electoral votes.

That would frustrate, it has now become quite clear, what was George C. Wallace's calculated plan. He made all his 535 electoral votes a notarized affidavit pledging them to cast their votes for him "or for the candidate he shall direct." As it turned out, his 45 electoral votes were not a key to the bargain he hoped to strike compelling either Richard Nixon or Hubert Humphrey to enter into the "southern covenant" promising concessions to his segregationist, anti-Supreme Court viewpoint.

Once you get beyond the simple proposition of abolishing the electoral college the plot thickens. Every congressional cook has his own recipe and, as many, the very, very many who wished they would.

RCMP Tradition

MAY I COMPLIMENT you on the editorial "Proud Tradition." Ours is a changing world, as one current advertisement reads, and any thinking person would not deny this, nor that change is essential in terms of progress and enlightenment.

However there are some fundamental values and traditions which provide strong and enduring foundations, and the prefix Royal in the RCMP identity is one.

A short historical reflection at this point may be of interest. The idea of a frontier unit to police Canada's western plains was conceived in 1870; later a careful survey by Col. Robert-Ross, the commanding officer of Canada's militia, recommended the establishment of a 550 member mounted rifle corps, well trained and lightly armed, as the answer to the problem.

The then prime minister, Sir John A. Macdonald, introduced a bill in the Commons, which eventually became law in 1873. It was "for the administration of justice, and the establishment of a police force in the north-west territories." The original intention was to call this body "The North West Mounted Rifles," but because of the expressions of alarm sounded in official Washington, D.C., at the prospect of a "military" intrusion by Canada along the international boundary, the prime minister called for the original draft, drew his pen through Mounted Rifles, and wrote in "Mounted Police." Thus the force was born.

The unparalleled achievement of the North West Mounted through the years 1873 to 1900, involved long hours of strenuous work, hardships and danger in a new and hostile environment. Straight-forward and honest confrontation with the Plains Indians, coupled with firmness and courage spared Canada the bloody Indian wars which had troubled the United States frontier, and still were at that time.

It was in recognition of this outstanding service that His Majesty the King, upon the recommendation of the government of Canada, conferred the title "Royal" on the North West Mounted Police, in the year 1904. The name was changed once more in 1920 to accommodate the expanded jurisdiction of the corps from east to west coast and to the far outposts of the north, it became the Royal Canadian Mounted Police.

During my 36 years with this uniquely Canadian force, I served in every part of Canada, including over four years in Quebec, and for the information of M. George Vézina, P.C., Montreal-St. Marie, my French speaking comrades of "C" Division were equally proud of the title "Royal" and the scarlet tunic; we collectively regarded ourselves as Canadians belonging to a distinctly Canadian service. The abandonment of "Royal" might render the force more acceptable to a fractious minority in Quebec, but I could not visualize any circumstances where it would increase prestige or authority.

A mere name or title of itself does not make an individual nor an organization great, but a title such as that borne by the Royal Canadian Mounted Police and earned the hard way by sacrifice, courage and integrity, must never be thoughtlessly nor lightly set aside.

Worth Preserving

Thank you for your editorial "Proud Tradition." I cannot understand the trend, nowadays, to discard tradition as useless and unjustified. Hellyer got away with it in the armed services unionization plan, to make a name for himself, and I have expected that something similar would occur in connection with the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, but hope that it does not happen at least until after the forces centenary in a few years time.

Hellyer's idea, which he claimed was motivated by reasons of economy, would have been equally effective if he had left tradition alone.

The federal government for many decades underpaid and short supplied the old North West Mounted Police and the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, who worked under extremely difficult and hazardous conditions in the west and north. It was mainly tradition and honor of the force that enabled its members to carry on whilst badly underpaid and often in dire necessity of food and comfort. Long hours were put in at a rate of pay below that of unskilled workers in the labor field. Certainly the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, whilst under improved conditions, to a certain extent, have carried on in the same manner, due to tradition.

For the commercial minded Canadian, the changing of the title, would be a disadvantage, as many have used the force as an advertising feature.

With reference to Quebec, fair treatment of the French speaking Canadian would not be effected by the change of title. If a little less publicity was given to the differences in culture and faith between the French and Anglo-Saxon Canadian by the news media, we would get on much better in building a strong and united Canada.

To those of us who were given the privilege of serving Canada in the remote areas of Canada, which had a mixed population of British, French, Indian and Metis people, we got on far better than many commentators in our so-called modern civilization. We treated one another as human beings, each having a lot to learn from one another, and we helped one another. Of course we had a decided advantage in being far removed from bigoted, self-interested office holders and over-paid politicians.

CBC Preferred

I should like to take issue with your editorial "Silence of Consent" on the subject of the CBC.

I have recently returned from two months in the U.S. where I was subjected to "free enterprise" TV, which included seven advertisements in a 15-minute news program. At least here in Canada we are not subjected to advertisements during the CBC news. Of course there are many programs I do not like which are produced by the CBC, but on the other hand I have been very full of TV with advertisements about soap, detergents and deodorants even in such first-class news programs as Chet Huntley and Brinkley and Walter Cronkite.

You give a figure of a deficit of $151,000,000 in the CBC operation. On the basis of a population of some 20 millions this works out to just two cents per day per person. If we did not pay this to the CBC we would be paying the same, or possibly more in advertisements to a "free enterprise" system and for my part in spite of many things I do not like in the CBC I prefer to maintain a national system which is not entirely dependent on the sponsors for the type of programs which are furnished.

In the United States the sponsors of programs have complete control of the programs which they sponsor and I feel that this is one of the reasons why the programs are furnished not on merit but solely on the basis of what will sell the product. Regardless of its many faults, and I feel great improvements can be made in the operation of the CBC, after watching TV for two months in the United States I am sure we would be most unwise to place the CBC under "private enterprise."

The question will possibly be asked why I watched U.S. TV programs if I thought they were so indifferent and my answer is that I was a guest in a home and in order to hear the news one had to put up with the bombardment of advertisements.

CANEX Complaints

I read your report of Alderman Baird's suggestion that the Canadian Forces CANEX at Esquimaux be closed with mixed feelings.

I doubt that the establishment of CANEX would have the impact on local retail merchants that is suggested in your paper, and I would remind Alderman Baird and all objectors to CANEX that all retail businesses give their employees a purchasing preference in way of discounts, and further that a number of Victoria and district merchants issue cards to service personnel and DND employees which entitles them to a discount on purchases. I submit that these merchants are just as unfair to their fellow merchants as CANEX is supposed to be. It would be of interest possibly to ascertain how many Victoria merchants honor these discount cards and how much they have increased their sales as a result of this practice.

It seems to me that the complaining merchants are crying wolf before they can substantiate a claim of loss of business, and furthermore all employees of retail merchants and other organizations are entitled to receive a discount from their employers why not be consistent and allow service personnel to enjoy the same privilege through their employer. After all they too are taxpayers and can claim they are subsidizing the employees of retail merchants who enjoy a discount privilege.

U.S. Faces Shortage Of Water

By ELMER W. LAMMI, from Washington

President Johnson, submitting a "sobering report" on the nation's water resources, has urged Congress to give top priority to solving the problems of drought, floods and water pollution.

"A nation that fails to plan intelligently for the development and protection of its precious waters will be condemned to wither because of its shortsightedness," Johnson said. "The hard lessons of history are clear, written on the desecrated sands and ruins of once proud civilizations."

The president's warning was expressed in a letter forwarding to Congress a report on water problems facing the country in the next 50 years. Johnson said ample supplies of water to support a growing population and an expanding economy could not be taken for granted.

He saw "stark warnings" in pollution destroying the nation's rivers, the recent drought in the Northeast and the "nightmare of ravaging floods still hovering over too many American communities."

The report, noting that expected use of water in America by 2020 would exceed natural runoff, said Alaska was seen as having perhaps the fewest water problems. Other areas not considered critical included the Pacific Northwest, Tennessee, Hawaii and Puerto Rico.

The Lower Mississippi region was viewed as "water rich" and a strategic area for future development because of the heavy flow of the Mississippi River.

In California, the report said, enough water could be provided by transfer from the North to the populous South. But desalting and waste water reclamation might prove to be cheaper in the long run, the report suggested.

Areas with particularly severe problems included the Lower Colorado River basin—chiefly in Arizona—and the Rio Grande area of New Mexico and Texas.

In Arizona, the report said, the dependable water supply already was inadequate to meet needs. In the Rio Grande area, it said, projected economic growth could not be maintained unless water problems are solved.

In the Great Lakes region, increased water use would add to the serious pollution problems already plaguing Lakes Michigan, Erie and Ontario, the report said.

Recommendations made by council included:

• More comprehensive river basin planning with increased attention to national goals for balancing population and economic growth.

• Cooperation among local, state and federal author-ties in the planning of water supply projects in metropolitan areas.

• Tighter control of pollution by industry, including the discharge of cooling water by steam-generated power plants.

• A study to determine whether state and federal legislation is needed to set aside future reservoir sites.

• More study of the impact of water resource development on public health.

• Consideration of water transfers between river basins as a way to alleviate water shortages.

From London

Europe's currency crisis is essentially a German-French quarrel over frugality and extravagance. But it also shows the weakness of the non-Communist world's monetary system.

The system was launched into that dreamy period of post-war idealism when the world's leaders figured they finally found a way of coping with entangled currencies and how to relate one national currency to another in a reasonable and orderly way. Stabilized currencies was the aim of the International Monetary Fund and in most cases the fund achieved its goals.

But occasionally the system broke down, especially when strong-willed leaders refused to bow to the judgment or the realities of the marketplace.

West Germany built up its economic strength by living modestly at home while developing big export markets through products the world wants.

The result is a huge surplus of exports over imports and an overflowing treasury of foreign currencies and gold. France, next door, also built up a big treasury but President de Gaulle tried to use it as a currency weapon against his old allies. At the same time his people riled against austerity and demanded a bigger share of the gilded calf.

When de Gaulle finally agreed, the economic storm broke. Business leaders, economists, investors and the ordinary men of the street soon concluded their money was being weakened through uncontrolled inflation.

The West German mark looked a lot safer. In the rush to ditch francs and trade them for marks, a roaring sea of international currencies flowed into West Germany in a frenzied exchange for marks.

It appeared reasonable, in the judgment of the marketplace, that the mark was worth a lot more than its current price—and the franc a lot less.

But neither West Germany nor France would budge on changing their currency prices. For de Gaulle a devalued franc would be a great blow to his prestige, especially after his government said it would not be cut.

For the West Germans a currency markup might mean the permanent loss of valuable export markets.

It decided a more flexible step would be temporary duty changes, to make West German goods slightly more expensive for the foreign buyer and foreign goods a bit cheaper for West German consumers. That might encourage more imports and discourage more exports.

But that didn't satisfy speculators who figured the mark was still worth more. The flow of foreign currency kept coming, forcing an emergency meeting of finance ministers of the world's 10 leading countries in Bonn.

The upshot may finally be a European currency realignment or some extensive belt-tightening in France combined with pledges of massive foreign loans.

But for this West Germany is not to be blamed. It had kept its economic house in order. It argued with reason that its neighbors should try to do the same.

Will Canada Fill 'Vacant Chair?'

Rivals Manoeuvre For Nasser Throne

By LEO HEIMAN
From Jerusalem

Egypt's President Nasser, still a hero to 10,000,000 Arabs throughout the Middle East, is suffering from diabetes, a weak heart and clogging of vital arteries. This is the gist of a confidential medical report leaked by reliable diplomatic sources who say the struggle for succession in Cairo already has begun.

As evaluated by Israeli experts on Arab affairs, Western intelligence analysts and neutral diplomats, the key men who are competing for the Kremlin's approval as Nasser's heir apparent are:

• Gen. Mohammed Fawzi, former chief of general staff in the Israeli-Arab war of June, 1967, and now the minister of defence and supreme commander of the Egyptian armed forces.

The 53-year-old general has recently cemented his position by replacing Nasser as chief negotiator in talks conducted in Cairo with a top-level Soviet military mission.

• Fawzi's chief rival in the war of succession is Gen. Abdul Moneim Riad, 50, the current chief of general staff.

General Fawzi

Riad commanded the unified Egyptian-Jordanian forces on the Jerusalem battlefield in the 1967 war and is described by the Israelis as the best Arab commander since the Crusades.

• Moscow's man in Cairo appears to be 47-year-old Amin Howaidy, who is Nasser's minister of state in charge of intelligence, security and police.

• Sharawi Juma'a, 46, another former Communist with known Kremlin connections, is the minister of the interior in President Nasser's cabinet.

• Dr. Mahmoud Fawzi, 68, Egypt's foreign minister and President Nasser's adviser on international affairs. His name has been repeatedly mentioned as the prime minister of a caretaker government in the event of Nasser's death or resignation.

The Russians regard him as a "Westerner" and do not trust him. He is disliked by the generals and police chiefs, but enjoys Nasser's backing and general respect.

• Sa'ad Sharaf, 39, the chief of Nasser's inner cabinet, is the youngest of the six contestants and almost unknown outside Egypt.

A graduate of a Russian military school, his political sympathies are unknown, but despite his relatively junior rank (colonel), even generals salute him first.

Veteran observers say many surprises are still possible in Cairo but the final contest will be decided between Juma'a and Howaidy, the only two men whom the Kremlin trust and will support after Nasser fades away.

A high-level Canadian mission completed talks with Brazilian officials this week and headed into the final days of Latin American discussions that are expected to bring a significant shift in Canada's foreign policy.

Mitchell Sharp, Canada's secretary of state for external affairs, who headed the delegation, called it "the largest and most representative official mission ever to leave Canada for any purpose."

The group is holding talks in nine Latin American nations on a tour which began Oct. 27 and ends Nov. 27.

Its goal, as outlined by Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau last month in Ottawa, is to demonstrate Canada's changing attitude toward Latin America, which Canada has all but ignored in the past.

One possible outcome of the talks is Canadian application for membership in the Organization of American States.

No promises have been made on this score and none can be expected until the mission arrives back in Ottawa, Nov. 27. At that time, according to Canadian sources here, Prime Minister Trudeau presumably will make known his intentions.

If he should choose to apply, the move would eliminate the "vacant chair" set aside for Canada 20 years ago when the United States and the Latin American republics formed the Organization of American States.

Regardless of Trudeau's decision on that question, the mission now in Latin America will surely bring about far-reaching changes in Canadian-Latin American relations.

"The importance of the mission," Sharp told a press conference here, "may be measured by the fact that altogether five ministers are engaged in it, assisted by a very large group of senior officials drawn from departments and agencies which have responsibilities in the three main spheres of the mission's interests—political, economic and cultural."

Starting in Venezuela, the group has already met with leading officials in Colombia, Peru, Chile, Argentina and Brazil. Next comes Mexico, followed by Guatemala and Costa Rica.

No joint statements have been issued by the governments involved and no trade agreements have been signed at this point, a Canadian embassy official here said.

At the very least, the discussions are expected to result in a significant increase in the volume of commerce between Canada and Latin America. Trudeau himself has gone on record with statements that Canada must turn away from Europe and look to its own hemisphere.

This attitude was reflected in a statement attributed to John Greene, the minister of mines and energy and a member of the mission.

"Just because our grandfathers and their fathers came from Britain or France," he was quoted as saying, "does not mean that we must continue to pay more attention to the old continent and the Commonwealth."

Lending urgency to this way of thinking is the fact that Britain has been rebuffed repeatedly in her efforts to gain admission to the European Common Market, which would provide outlets for Canadian as well as British products.

Canada's trade with Latin America as of now is relatively unimportant, the major factor being crude oil from Venezuela. Total exports to this area last year were valued at $260,000,000 against imports of $357,000,000.

UN Surveys World Tragedies

Thousand Suicides a Day

By EARL T. FOELL, from United Nations

At least 1,000 people commit suicide throughout the world on an average day.

A new World Health Organization study seeks to analyze these tragedies, and from that analysis to suggest ways for communities to cut back the total.

The WHO survey shows that:

• In industrialized countries physicians, dentists, and lawyers are likely to have higher suicide rates than other professionals.

• Men are still far more likely to attempt suicide than women, but the rates for females show a tendency to rise in many countries keeping statistics, while the male rate is declining.

• The age group with the highest rate continues to be the over-65 group. But countries with efficient, large-scale social welfare and medical services for the aged apparently have a better chance of reducing that rate.

• There is accumulating, though inconclusive, evidence that the suicide rate among younger aged groups is rising in parts of the world where statistical studies are made. In a few industrial countries a secondary age peak, lower than that of the over-65 group, occurs in the 15-to-24 age group, where, because of lower death rates, from other causes, suicide may become a common cause of death.

• Migrants, the ethnically isolated, alcoholics, mental cases (especially manic-depressives), persons from broken homes lead the list of suicides from more specific causes.

• There is a higher rate of suicides in the poorer, "third world" countries than had previously been suspected. But, despite incomplete findings, the incidents in those African, Asian, and Latin American countries is not expected to match that of European and North American countries, where suicide ranks among the first five to 10 causes of death in recent years.

• For every complete suicide there are from eight to 10 unsuccessful attempts. This points to a world figure of perhaps 5,000,000 attempts per year.

• Statistical trends differ markedly in different countries—even those with similar climate, working conditions and income. For instance, suicides among males dropped sharply (nine-to-27 per cent) in the period 1952-1963 in Switzerland, Denmark, Japan and Sweden. During the same period in Scotland, Canada and Austria they rose even more sharply (23 to 42 per cent).

No explanation is given for the finding that doctors, dentists and attorneys have relatively higher suicide rates than other professionals in industrialized land. But a quotation from the British Medical Journal shows one in 150 medical doctors in England and Wales takes his own life.

In a five-year period, 6 per cent of all deaths of physicians there under the age of 65 were from suicide. The same report mentions high suicide rates among doctors in Denmark, Italy and the United States.

U.S. Envoy Meets ThieuSaigon Remains Obstinate

SAIGON (UPI) — U.S. Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker met today with President Nguyen Van Thieu in a new effort to resolve Saigon's boycott of the pending Paris peace talks. The meeting followed government reports that Thieu publicly refused to change his conditions for attending.

In Paris, however, diplomatic sources said Thieu had agreed "in principle" to taking part in the new round of talks and that they might open as early as next week.

CONG HURDLE

The Bunker-Thieu meeting was the first in nearly a week. Thieu was quoted today by government press reports as telling government officials his government still refused to attend a conference where the Viet Cong were an independent unit and where Saigon did not lead the allied side.

One compromise formula believed under discussion between Bunker and the South Vietnamese president called for a co-chairmanship at the expanded peace talks with Saigon and Washington sharing leadership of the allied side.

RADIO REPORT

The government-operated Saigon Radio reported Thieu repeated his statement Saigon representatives would sit at the negotiating table only under the formula he outlined last Nov. 8. The formula calls for a two-sided peace conference at which South Vietnam would lead the allied side and Hanoi the Communist side.

Under Thieu's proposal, the United States and the National Liberation Front, political arm of the Viet Cong guerrillas, would play subordinate roles. North Vietnam earlier dismissed the Thieu plan as "an absurdity."

Saigon Radio said Thieu explained at a government officials' seminar at the coastal resort of Vung Tau, 60 miles from Saigon, that Hanoi sought recognition for the NLF with the aim of eventually arranging a coalition government in South Vietnam.

SAIGON (UPI) — Communist mortarmen pounded two more South Vietnamese cities Wednesday and today in shelling that included mostly school children among the 37 injured and two dead. The shelling was the 73rd and 74th against civilian centres since the Nov. 1 bombing halt.

Other Red gunners shelled U.S. military bases at 1st Air Cavalry headquarters, 20 miles north of Saigon, and at Pleiku airfield in the central highlands with only light casualties, military spokesmen in Saigon said today.

Meanwhile, U.S. B-52 bombers

Hanoi Seeks Additional Soviet Arms

PARIS (LAT) — Le Duc Tho, Hanoi's special counselor to its delegation in Paris, is believed to be seeking assurances from Soviet leaders of continued deliveries of arms, including 122-mm. rockets such as were used in raids on American military installations at Da Nang early Wednesday.

The large-calibre rockets, taller than a man and easily fired, are the ultimate weapons system in the Southern Communist arsenal, the equivalent of America's jet bombers. They are supplied to North Vietnam by both the Soviet Union and China, and are in turn supplied to the Viet Cong by Hanoi.

Tho left Hanoi last Friday en route to Paris to take up his mission as special counselor to the North Vietnamese delegation in the hung up new phase of the Paris talks.

Commission

Alternative TV Bids Studied

OTTAWA (CP) — After acting as the target for stacks of written briefs and millions of spoken words, the Canadian Radio-Television Commission is ready to mull it all over and decide how second television service is to be brought into one-station areas.

The section of its public hearing dealing with alternative TV wound up Wednesday after two days and about 12 hours of discussion. Before this Ottawa meeting, the subject was discussed at CRTC public hearings earlier this fall in Moncton, N.B., and Regina.

PUBLIC CLAMOR

In making up its mind what policy will be, the CRTC will have to weigh the growing public clamor for a choice in viewing from those communities now limited to one Canadian station along with these other factors:

● The desire of a second network, or even a third network, or a cable TV operator to move into the area with an alternative service.

● The fears of the single-station operators that whatever form their new competition takes, it will mean rocky financial times for them, perhaps rough enough to put them out of business.

● The desire of the publicly-owned CBC to set up CBC-owned, CBC-operated stations through every province to ensure proper development of regional and provincial broadcasting services.

At the moment, although the CRTC has heard a proposal for a third TV network, the privately-owned CTV network provides the only alternative service available.

It is willing to set up rebroadcasting transmitters in many of the single-station markets but says not enough revenue is available to set up a second full-fledged CTV station.

Most single-station men say they cannot withstand the kind of competition a CTV rebroadcaster would give them.

Earlier in the day, Gordon Keable, CTV chairman, described the proposed plans for a third TV network as "bold and imaginative" but "unworkable now."

Archivist Retires

OTTAWA (CP) — W. Kaye Lamb, 64, the fourth Dominion archivist in 96 years, retired Wednesday after 20 years as chief husbandman of this country's history.

In an interview in his office overlooking the Gatineau Hills stretching north of Ottawa, he said he plans to spend the winter in the French Riviera and then come back to Canada next spring to write, mainly, about history.

Economic Trip for Canada

Bonn Invitation Explained

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's West German capital Wednesday.

Trudeau said Finance Minister Edgar Benson and Louis Rasmussen, governor of the Bank of Canada, went to Bonn Tuesday night at the invitation of West Germany's economics minister, Karl Schiller. They were accompanied by other top officials.

Canada had no particular position to put forward in the meeting, which took place in the meeting as a member of the so-called Group of 10 leading economic powers.

West Germany's booming economy, moving towards a trade surplus in the vicinity of $4,500,000,000 this year, has been drawing huge amounts of foreign currency into the country. Speculators have been converting funds into West German marks in anticipation of an upward revaluation.

Czech Students Defiant, Trains Watched Closely

PRAGUE (UPI) — Prague University students Wednesday defied a plea from the nation's leadership to end their "dangerous" protest movement and continued their classroom sit-ins. Some workers' units joined in token protest.

In a proclamation on the tense nationwide protest against cancellation of most of the Dubcek regime's liberal reforms, the entire top leadership of the Communist party and government warned further snowballing "could lead only to unforeseen events, the consequences of which could be immense."

The crisis warning was taken as a reference to possible Soviet troop intervention. A similar warning last month failed to deter tens of thousands of students from demonstrating on national independence day.

The cabinet of the Czechoslovak government announced it would "discuss the proposals of the democratic movement of students and take a stand on them" at a meeting Thursday.

The Prague University students voted to continue occupying Prague universities at least until noon today after government representatives failed to coax them out during a climax meeting Wednesday.

The student sit-ins ebbed in Bratislava and at secondary schools in Prague, where strike leader called them off Wednesday night. But university leaders throughout the Czech areas of Moravia and Bohemia followed Prague's suit in voting to continue through today.

The official warning proclamation came after trainmen threatened to back sit-ins by halting rail traffic. Other support from the students came from workers at some factories in Prague who staged taken 10-minute sit-ins and at others where workers blew factory whistles.

The government proclamation said all members of the party presidium and central committee agreed unanimously on the appeal to halt the protest movement before it went any farther. It then spoke of the "unforeseen events" which could result.

West Softsoaped

Kremlin Starts Dovish Drive

LONDON (UPI) — The Kremlin is pushing a sudden "peace offensive" evidently triggered by fears over the hardening of the Western front, diplomatic sources said Wednesday.

During the past few days, surprisingly soft words, including appeals for a resumption of the East-West dialogue, have come from the Soviet leaders.

The first feeler was issued by Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko who took advantage of a weekend visit to Budapest to underline the need for peaceful coexistence with the West.

PEACE APPEAL

An even firmer "peace" appeal came from Premier Alexei Kosygin who told two visiting U.S. senators in Moscow Tuesday that Soviet foreign policy in the near future would pursue peaceful coexistence, an easing of East-West relations and a balance of strength between the two super powers.

The "dovish" talk from the Soviet leadership significantly coincided with Western decisions to strengthen defenses against any possible new Kremlin ventures in East Europe or the Mediterranean.

The Kremlin peace offensive was seen by diplomats in the West as a manoeuvre to counter the impression of revived Soviet aggressiveness, triggered by the invasion of Czechoslovakia and new pressures on Romania and Yugoslavia and in the MidEast.

Moscow, which had been evasive for some time on talks with the United States on a possible missile moratorium, now is pressing Washington to open negotiations as soon as possible.

RED WORRIES

Diplomatic sources said Russia evidently is worried about the freeze in American and European contacts with Moscow and a marked slowdown in any allied dealings on major policy issues until further notice.

The Kremlin appears to be surprised by the sharp Western reaction to its move against Prague, the diplomats said.

Communist diplomats in Western capitals currently are going out of their way to "explain" that the intervention in Prague was limited to their "sphere" and that there is no intention to alter policy toward the West generally.

These Communist diplomats argue that Moscow informed the West, notably the United States, in advance of the invasion to make it clear that it meant no move against the NATO area. The warning, Western officials noted, was indeed given — but it coincided with rather than preceded the move of Warsaw Pact troops into Czechoslovakia.

Military Silent In Mali

BAMAKO (AFP) — The citizens of this Mali capital still were waiting as night fell Wednesday for an announcement from Mali's new military rulers as to who will run the west African country.

Officials were summoned for a briefing by Lieut. Moussa Traore, the man who led Tuesday's coup, but after that there was silence.

It appeared the army was making sure of its grip on the country and at the same time making contact with civilians it wants to entrust with top jobs.

Observers here pointed out that Finance Minister Louis Negre was still at liberty, as was Development Bank Chairman T. Konate.

Some reports, impossible to confirm, said that ousted president Modibo Keita may have been moved by the army. One report said he might be at the army camp at Kati.

Copter Aids McNamara

CALCUTTA (Reuters) — World Bank President Robert S. McNamara was rescued by helicopter Wednesday after leaving Indian students tried to break through police cordons to reach him.

About 1,000 Communist-led students tried to break through police lines at the airport when McNamara, former U.S. defense secretary, arrived here from New Delhi.

Two helicopters lifted McNamara and his party out of the airport as the students threw rocks and bricks at the police.

The police drove back the students by firing tear-gas shells into the crowd. Several persons were injured and 37 arrested.

Red Unity Conference Reflects Disunity

BUDAPEST (UPI) — Most of the world's Communist parties debated Wednesday about when to hold a summit which the Russians have wanted for a long time, but the discussion reflected fears and uncertainties in the Communist camp.

The Soviet-led invasion of Czechoslovakia is at the heart of the discord, experienced political observers agreed.

The Russians had called for a summit meeting. The Chinese wing is attempting to arrange a summit that would show the Kremlin camp is united.

The delegates are likely to finally approve a compromise resolution from host Hungary.

House Moves To Weaken Lords' Power

LONDON (CP) — The House of Commons Wednesday night approved plans for the most sweeping reform of the House of Lords since the British Parliament's upper chamber was created in the 14th century.

Under the reform, contained in a government white paper, hereditary peers will lose their automatic right to sit in the House of Lords and vote on legislation.

APPOINTED

And some non-voting peers will be appointed not through birthright but for services to the state.

The Commons endorsed the government plan for reform despite a revolt within the governing Labor party.

Many left-wing Labor members of Parliament attacked it because they wanted to abolish the House of Lords altogether as an anachronism.

KEEP 'BRAKE'

Some Conservative Opposition members fought the proposal because they want to retain the traditional aristocratic "brake" on law-making.

The vote Wednesday night was the latest in a steady erosion of the Lord's rights in checking legislation sent to them from the elected House of Commons.

For the last 20 years the Conservative-dominated Lords could delay an ordinary bill for only one year and the proposals accepted Wednesday night would reduce their delaying power to six months.

Parliament's once-mighty upper chamber has 1,045 members including royal princes, archbishops, dukes, earls and viscounts. Only about 300 attend debates regularly.

The Labor government told Parliament Wednesday night the streamlined upper house would have a two-tier system of voting and non-voting peers.

Effective control would be in the hands of about 230 specially-created members, appointed by each current government.

CUT CHANCE

This will effectively reduce the chances of a constitutional crisis arising when the Lords defy the Commons—as they have done in the past.

Forty-five Labor members defied strong government pressure by voting against the reform proposals. Many other government supporters abstained.

The vote was 270 to 159.

The government still must introduce a bill embodying its proposals, and in view of the opposition they may be watered down or pigeonholed.

Two Ships Still Held

Ghana Ignores Sputtering Moscow

WASHINGTON (LAT) — The doughty little republic of Ghana, ignoring Moscow's outbursts, is holding two Soviet fishing trawlers and their 50 crewmen who were taken into custody last month after a Ghanaian corvette fired a six-shot salvo across the bows of the startled Soviet ships.

The Soviet trawlers were herded into the Ghanaian port of Takoradi after allegedly violating Ghana's territorial waters as their crews were trading sharks to Ghanaian fishermen for parrots and monkeys.

Although Russian trawlers sometimes indulge in espionage, it is unknown if the Ghana incident has any Pueblo-type implications. Ghanaian authorities, however, are understood to be suspicious of some entries in the trawlers' sailing logs.

The seizure, which infuriated Moscow, has attracted little public attention. But American officials are watching the incident with more than detached interest.

Some Ghanaian editorialists, possibly stretching things a bit, have suggested the incident had sinister, Czechoslovakia-type implications for their country.

And Ghana, hostile to Moscow since the Ghanaian army ousted pro-Soviet president Kwame Nkrumah while he was on a trip to China in 1966, has used the incident to ridicule and belabor the Soviet Union.

Biafran Holding His Hand Out 'In Desperation, to Canada'

LONDON (CP) — The still-defiant chief of beleaguered Biafra is "holding out his hand in desperation to Canada," says a Canadian member of Parliament from a visit to both sides of the Nigerian civil war.

Ralph Stewart, Liberal MP for Ontario riding of Cochrane, said in an interview Wednesday that Col. C. O. Ojukwu of Biafra "thinks Canada is the one country that can help him."

Lorne Nyström, New Democratic Party member for Yorkton-Melville in Saskatchewan, reported that Ojukwu told them both that "only a tree dies standing still."

The Canadians, in London before returning home today after their two-week trip, saw hundreds of Biafrans seeking relief from malnutrition and, in their visit to the federal side, heard Ojukwu called "a power-mad individual," unrepresentative of the population of Nigeria's breakaway Eastern region.

Nyström said Canada enjoys "a certain amount of respect on both sides" and Stewart maintained that Canada, if invited to mediate, "could be the most effective of any country in the world."

Pravda Urges Better Roads

MOSCOW (Reuters) — An appeal for quick improvement in the quantity, quality and safety standards of Soviet roads to meet the demands of the growing number of motor vehicles appeared in the Communist party newspaper Pravda.

New York Farmers May Get Tax Break

NEW YORK (UPI) — To the surprise of the millions who inhabit New York's concrete canyons, the city council finance committee plans today to take up a bill to relieve the city's "hard-pressed" farmers — all 113 of them.

The bill would exempt farmers from the city sales tax. The average "farm" in New York is 3.7 acres and every borough except Manhattan can boast at least one such rustic spot.

Folk song gathering in UVic's Craigdarroch College

Craigdarroch Co-Curricular College

Home Away from Home Unveiled

By CLEMENT CHAPPEL

Dean Ronald Jeffels explained to about 200 UVic students Tuesday what is meant by a co-curricular college:

"A device for giving people a place that they can call home on the university campus," he said.

The students of Craigdarroch College who gathered at an open house meeting in a large study room heard that their home away from home will give them considerably more to do, see, hear and think about than they could get in their true homes.

FOR START

For a start, there are a Master (Dean Jeffels) and a 10-member college council "to encourage and guide student involvement in college affairs."

The family members in this home number about 1,000, of which 300 are residents of the college, the remainder off-campus dwellers.

The coffee-and-doughnuts session Tuesday night was to introduce students to their new "social, cultural and recreational home," said Dean Jeffels.

THREE YEARS

He said a faculty-student study made three years ago of large campuses around the continent recommended the idea of co-curricular colleges to prevent the university from becoming one monolithic campus of 10,000 people.

Thus the university will eventually be formed into 10 colleges of 1,000 students. Craigdarroch is the first.

The study-room chat began with a short concert by folk guitarist-singer Denis Johnston, a member of the college council, and a second-year English language student. Sitting on desks, chairs and the floor, munching and sipping refreshments, the students joined in the singing.

Explaining the college's intent, Dean Jeffels said "the life of the college cannot be thrust upon the students."

This "spiritual entity," he said, will be "what the students want to make of it... this is very important."

To that end, students are being canvassed for their views on what kind of entertainment, lectures and discussions they would like to participate in.

PATTERN POINT

Dr. Jeffels urged the students to come forward and make the college "along the pattern you would like it to be."

He introduced the college fellows who would assist the students in "creating the life of the college."

These included Dr. Bryan Gooch who is "the official custodian of morality" in the college. Dr. Jeffels pressed upon the students a suggestion to consult the fellows on trouble... "of any nature."

BIRTH CONTROL

Under direction of Dr. Lionel Adey, programming officer, students will hear a Catholic minister discussing the birth-control question.

Other questions to be examined this term will be the "God is dead" theory and a talk on "the essence of religion."

Next term, said Dr. Adey, "we will widen the whole thing" with subjects like "the essence of the university," and "the essence of man."

"We will get to the point where absolutely everything is going on at this college."

'Rental' Aldermen Pose No Problem

Changes in legislation that allow non-property-owners to run for city council cannot possibly create a giant headache, Victoria Mayor Hugh Stephen said Wednesday.

"The change is no headache at all," the mayor said. He was commenting on a report in another newspaper which quoted an unnamed city official as saying the change could bring about "a really serious situation."

Said Mayor Stephen: "I don't know what that means, I can't see what this person has in mind."

Up until this year, only property-owners could be elected to council, but changes in the Municipal Act now permit renters to run for office.

However, all money bylaws passed by councils must still be presented to property-owners for approval. The result is that an alderman who is not a property-owner could advocate spending but not be able to vote on the issue when it went to public vote.

Mayor Stephen said he agreed the new situation was somewhat anomalous, but "property-owners will still have the power they have now to approve or disapprove of spending proposed by council."

Glyn Holme, shore engineer for the company, gave no dollar estimate of the damage, believed started by a short circuit. The full damage will not be known until all wiring has been checked, he said. Other damage was caused by smoke and water, but the engine was unharmed.

Phone Books On Way

Delivery of 97,000 new telephone directories began Tuesday in Greater Victoria.

The new book for 1968-69 has 80,000 listings as against the last book's 75,000, and 544 pages compared with 512.

Delivery will be completed in 10 days to Greater Victoria, Central Saanich, Sidney, Sooke, Jordan River, Port Renfrew, Ganges and the Gulf Islands.

The books were made from 190 tons of paper.

The biggest change in the new directory is the transfer of 6,000 subscribers from the Blanshard exchange to the one on Foul Bay Road, making more number changes than usual in a new issue.

The new cover photograph is a view of Hudson Bay Mountain in the Coast Range.

Patrons Around World

Gift 'Showers' Rank Gallery In Top Three

By BILL THOMAS

The Art Gallery of Victoria is being showered with gifts from patrons around the world. This week the gallery opened a show of 60 of the most recent additions to the permanent collection.

"In recent years the quantity, variety and quality of gifts and bequests which the gallery has received have been on a scale unparalleled in the experience of medium-sized Canadian galleries," said director Colin Graham.

AMONG TOP THREE

The gallery appears to rank among the nation's top three in the importance of annual additions, the others being the Art Gallery of Ontario and the Montreal Museum of Fine Arts.

Gifts have come not only from local residents but also from Boston, New York, San Francisco, Tacoma, Seattle, Toronto, Ottawa, Vancouver, a number of European cities and Japan.

Mr. Graham said, "as the reputation of the collection spreads, the range of gifts from outside sources increases."

WIDE RANGE

In the present show the works range from a sculptured roundel of the Virgin and Child by the 18th-century Italian, Angelo Pio, to paintings and prints done by local artists in the past year.

Among the more unusual items are a rare example of 17th-century Venetian lace and a 14-foot-long, 18th-century Chinese hand scroll titled 'Metamorphoses of the Heavenly Spirits.'

Gallery patron Mrs. Fred Polard of San Francisco has included in her gifts two major screen paintings by the Japanese-American artist Paul Horuchi, a welded wire construction by sculptor Claire Falkenstein, Chinese and Japanese porcelain and lacquers from the 17th century and a group of color woodcuts by some of the best known contemporary Japanese print makers.

SET OF PRINTS

Three sets of prints have enlarged the gallery's collection of contemporary B.C. work. A series of 13 silk screen prints by some of the province's leading artists was commissioned by Simon Fraser University, and these have been presented to the gallery. Two sets of six silk screen prints by Vancouver painter Tony Oakey have been presented as a gift by the artist.

Memorial gifts have been presented in honor of the late Major Osbert Holmes and Joyce Lort.

Other local artists represented in the gifts include Donald Harvey, Gail Bigsby, Nancy Edell and Richard Ciccolmarra.

There are 30 additional gifts on their way to the gallery from patrons in Toronto, Seattle, Vancouver, Everett and San Francisco. They will be shown in January.

Doctor Role In School Views Aired

Ways in which family doctors can help disturbed school students were discussed Tuesday at a meeting between representatives of the Metropolitan Board of Health and the Victoria Medical Society.

"That was the main topic in a general discussion about how doctors can be more involved in school health services, said Central Saanich Mayor Gordon Lee.

Mayor Lee, chairman of the health board, said the doctors wanted family physicians to be consulted before a school psychologist treated a disturbed student.

No decisions on how to bring about greater co-operation were reached at the meeting, Mayor Lee said.

"There was a useful exchange of views and there will be a follow-up to this discussion," said the mayor, "although action may be delayed until health services become a regional board concern early next year."

Lawyer Claims Damage

VANCOUVER (CP) — A Vancouver lawyer Wednesday claimed that accountant A. D. Peter Stanley was "damaging" four companies in the Commonwealth group of which he has been appointed receiver-manager.

In British Columbia Supreme Court Wednesday Mr. Justice James McDonald made an order continuing Mr. Stanley as receiver until Dec. 4.

The date was agreed to after Mr. Justice McDonald was told that Mr. Stanley was leaving British Columbia later in the day for eight days.

FOUR FIRMS

Lawyer Graham MacKenzie said his four companies did not object to a receiver, but objected to Mr. Stanley.

He submitted affidavits which he said showed Mr. Stanley had a conflict of interest as manager of Commonwealth Trust Ltd. on the one hand and receiver-manager of the remaining companies on the other.

Mr. MacKenzie claimed it was damaging to the other companies in that monies due them in various business deals were being transferred to Commonwealth Trust.

The judge also added another company, Evergreen Estates Ltd., to the group of five over which Mr. Stanley presides as receiver-manager.

He'll See How It's Done

Ray Harper gets briefed on plant in Wolfsburg, Germany, he will visit on 13-day trip awarded for being best Volkswagen parts manager in Canada. He's served 13 years, longest term in country. Corporations Warned:

Taxation Reform Next Year

TORONTO (CP) — A Vancouver accountant today warned Canadian tax-planners not to start "any involved corporate manoeuvres at this time," because significant changes in taxation are about to be made.

David Sweet told the Canadian Tax Foundation that advisers should wait for promised reforms in what he called "the latest 10-year-cycle" of Canadian corporate tax changes.

"The planning of corporate distributions today will no doubt be drastically changed next year when our long-awaited tax reforms are introduced," Sweet said.

The tax changes of last month's budget are probably just a beginning, said Sweet, who also said the Carter report on taxation "must be dusted off and a second look taken at it."

Another speaker, Robert Walker, a Montreal lawyer, warned that people who accept free trips as rewards from companies might be wise to check with the income tax department to see if they are taxable on them.

He cited the case of the car dealer who accepted an expense-paid trip to the Caribbean for himself and his wife from the Ford Motor Co. of Canada.

The award was actually won by the dealer's firm, which transferred it to him as its president and chief shareholder. After the trip the income tax department assessed the dealer for tax, claiming he had received a benefit from his company and so was taxable.

The dealer appealed, and the appeal was allowed. The court ruled it was the car company which had conferred the benefit. Since the dealer was neither an employee nor a shareholder of the company, he was not taxable.

However, Walker said he doubts that the decision had a sound legal base.

Other panel members warned that Canadian companies which split into one or more corporate entities with the hope of avoiding tax at a high rate on their gross profits "may be in for a rocky ride."

The reason is a five-year-old section of the Income Tax Act which allows the revenue minister to rule that even if corporations are separate bodies they may be assessed for tax at a high rate on their combined earnings if it is clear they were set up partly to avoid paying this tax.

APPEAL ALLOWED
 The dealer appealed, and the appeal was allowed. The court ruled it was the car company which had conferred the benefit. Since the dealer was neither an employee nor a shareholder of the company, he was not taxable.

However, Walker said he doubts that the decision had a sound legal base.

Other panel members warned that Canadian companies which split into one or more corporate entities with the hope of avoiding tax at a high rate on their gross profits "may be in for a rocky ride."

The reason is a five-year-old section of the Income Tax Act which allows the revenue minister to rule that even if corporations are separate bodies they may be assessed for tax at a high rate on their combined earnings if it is clear they were set up partly to avoid paying this tax.

Weekend UBC-UVic Games To Count in Two Leagues

By KEVAN MULL

Everything comes up twos for University of Victoria Vikettes this basketball season.

First came the double schedule, with the advance from junior ranks where they were runners-up in the Canadian finals last season, to the Inter-City Senior Women's Basketball League plus full participation in the Western Canada Intercollegiate Athletic Association League.

COURTENAY TWINS

Then there was the addition of rookies Heather and Rose Witsel from Courtenay High School, the Vancouver Island champions last season. They are real doubles — 18-year-old twins.

Heather, a guard, is five-foot, six and a half inches tall while Rose, a half-inch taller, plays forward.

Add in Barb Tribe, a five-foot, four-inch guard, and Jeannie McHarris, a five-foot, nine-inch forward. Both are in their first year at UVic and bring plenty of senior experience from their two seasons with Rawlins, now Marquette, who won the Canadian championship last season.

STRANGEST DOUBLE

But the strangest double comes Friday and Saturday when Vikettes play at UBC against the Thunderettes. The teams only play twice, but are in effect playing four games.

Thunderettes are also in the Inter-city league and the games, which open the WCIAA league season, will also count as senior league matches.

VETERAN COACH

Coaching Vikettes this season is Hume Tuckey, who piloted Rawlins to their crown. He has been coaching 22 years and has handled both senior "A" men's and women's teams. Tuckey has a Canadian and eight B.C. championships to his record.

The club is built around the four holdovers from the previous season, centre Marole McInyre, Lyn Haglund, Jeannie Robertson and Gail Vaughan. Completing the young club are first-year students Peggy Robinson from J. L. Crowe, Hawthorn and Maureen Wills from Oak Bay.

The Vikette games form part of a general Vancouver invasion this weekend.

OTHERS ACTIVITY

The Viking and Jayvee men basketballers have double headers scheduled against Simon Fraser University on Friday and UBC Saturday.

Also on Saturday, the cross country team will be participating in a B.C. league race at Stanley Park and the rugby Saxons play at Simon Fraser.

Heading for Ellensburg, Wash., and the Northwest College Women's Field Hockey Association tournament at Central Washington are the UVic Varsity team, which shared the WCIAA championship with UBC.

The second team has a regular Vancouver Island league match against Oak Bay at Windsor Park.

VIKING NIGHT

At home, the top event is Viking night at Esquimalt Municipal Sports Centre with the students meeting Queen's Own Rifles at 7:45 p.m. Friday and presenting their Vancouver Island Hockey League queen candidate, Orlene Riley.

The rugby Vikings will be out to take sole possession of first place in the first division of the Victoria Rugby Union Saturday.

when they play hosts to Castaways at 2 p.m. Second-division leaders, UVic Ravensmen, meet JBAA Barbarians at Carnarvon Park at the same time.

PLAY TALLY-HO

Also aiming for first place in a local league this weekend is the UVic Viking entry in the first division of the Victoria and District Soccer League. Vikings play Tally-Ho Sunday at Heywood Avenue Park at 2 p.m.

The second-division Ravensmen play at William Head at 1:30 p.m.

The campus old team is getting set for the winter season with a mid-week Friday at the Student Union Building from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. All persons are welcome to attend to become outfitted for the upcoming season.

In men's field hockey, UVic Varsity play host to Red Barons Sunday at 11 a.m.

Consultant Chemist Defends Procedure

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — A Nebraska chemist testified Wednesday that he ran a series of tests on a urine specimen sent him shortly after the 1968 Kentucky Derby and all except one produced negative results.

He told the Kentucky Horse Racing Commission that another test for the presence of phenylbutazone showed "a very weak positive."

LEARNED LATER

Lou Harris of Lincoln, Neb., said he did not learn until sometime later that the specimen was from Dancer's Image, the Derby winner who was disqualified and placed last on the basis of a chemist's report.

Peter Fuller, the wealthy Boston auto dealer who owns Dancer's Image, asked the commission to reverse the decision by Churchill Downs stewards that deprived his colt of the Derby victory and first-place money of $122,600.

ASKED TO CHECK

Harris said he received a call from Louisville chemist Kenneth Smith the day after the Derby, asking him to check for the medication in a specimen Smith was sending him.

After the initial tests, Harris said he conducted other tests that produced the same results. He added that he reported his findings only to Smith.

DEFENDS METHODS

The witness defended Smith's methods of making the tests but added that normally he goes beyond the five tests which Smith used.

Fuller's counsel had argued that Smith failed to carry out all the tests recommended by the chemists' association. It was on the basis of Smith's report that stewards withheld the purse. Calumet Farm's Forward pass, which ran second in the Derby, was placed first and the money was put into escrow pending the outcome of the hearings.

Tasting is believing.

Look at Taster's Choice, the great freeze-dried instant coffee from Nestlé. It isn't just another powder, it's unique crystals of rich, percolated coffee.

These are the crystals that triggered the freeze-dried coffee revolution.

These are the crystals that actually look like freshly ground coffee.

These are the crystals with the "locked-in" taste of freshly ground coffee, just perked.

But don't take our word for it, try it and see.

Because tasting is believing.

Royals' Officials Resign in Dispute

Bob Fenton resigned as manager of the British Columbia Junior Hockey League New Westminster Royals Tuesday, during a directors' meeting in New Westminster.

Derek Williams and Gerry Payment, who were president and vice-president of the club, also resigned with Fenton apparently over junior hockey promotion policy in the lower mainland and differences over lack of fan support.

Dick Spring was named to succeed Fenton as manager and Steve McDonald was elected as the new club president.

The Royals play Victoria Cougars Tuesday at Memorial Arena.

Cougars' coach Doug Anderson isn't looking that far ahead, however. Saturday night the Kelowna Buckaroos, who are only one point behind second-place Victoria, move into Memorial Arena to do battle.

Anderson will re-unite the Cowick-Evans-Barrie line Saturday. Bruce Cowick suffered a head injury in last Friday's exhibition game against Butler Brothers of the Vancouver Island Hockey League and Len Barrie has been on a vacation in Calgary for a week.

Graham Brown will be dressed as the extra forward Saturday and Anderson expects to move Laurie Moore back into a left defence position beside Murray Kennett following a game at left wing last Saturday, and to stay with Gerry Bond and John "Dutch" Van Horlick as his other defensive pairing.

Wednesday's Kamloops-Penticton BCHL game at Kamloops was postponed at the request of the Penticton Broncos. Don Brown, Kamloops Rockets' manager said the Broncos did not want to travel the 100 miles for a single weeknight game and that the contest will be fitted into a weekend so that the Broncos could play two games with an overnight stay in between.

Striking Canadian Union of Public Employees workers' pickets at the Kamloops arena also contributed to the decision, according to Brown.

150th Anniversary

Royal Gifts Link City To Victoria

Queen Elizabeth is going to give the city of Victoria 50 photographs of engravings in the royal collection at Windsor Castle.

The photos will be used to mount an exhibition in the city next year to commemorate the 150th anniversary of the birth of Queen Victoria, after whom the city was named.

The display at the Art Gallery from April 30 to May 25 is being organized by Prof. F. W. Jackman of the University of Victoria history department.

Princess Alice, Countess of Athlone, is also sending 11 original photos of Queen Victoria, her grandmother.

And original engravings of Queen Victoria and her family will be loaned from the collection of the National Portrait Gallery in London, for the exhibition.

Mayor Hugh Stephen said many private individuals would also contribute to the exhibition, and he anticipated it would be one of the most popular ever held in the city.

The photos of engravings in the royal collection will remain in the city archives after the exhibition is over.

Teachers Decry Trustee Stand

By BILL STAVDAL

A mass meeting of Greater Victoria teachers Wednesday voted non-confidence in their school board for what was termed its refusal to negotiate a 1969 contract.

Close to 700 teachers also decided to go to the public with their story, which includes charges that the board does not actively involve teachers in educational planning.

The meeting of the 1,260-member GVTA nearly filled the 800-seat auditorium of Victoria High. The assembly was described as "sometimes stormy."

LATE INTO NIGHT

A meeting of the GVTA executive went on late into the night to plan a public information campaign about the difficulties teachers have had in communicating with the board on salaries and educational matters.

School board chairman Peter Bunn declared later that the teachers' negotiators had been "unrealistic" in their salary proposals.

Main cause of the teachers' discontent was the refusal of the school board's salary negotiator, E. E. Pearson, to make any offer during negotiations.

NO COUNTER-OFFER

The teachers first asked a 10.11 per cent raise, then lowered their request to 8 per cent. The board made no counter-offer and the matter automatically went to government arbitration last week.

GVTA executive members first made the education planning accusation two weeks ago in a meeting with the board. On Monday the board chairman distributed a list of 30 committees on which teachers are represented.

Mr. Bunn said the teachers' allegation had been "a gross disservice to the district."

On Wednesday, GVTA president John Smith waved a copy of the list and said:

"I have talked with a number of teachers whose names are on this list, and they tell me that it is news to them that they are on these committees."

Hawes

Oak Bay Mayor Appeals

Mayor Fred Hawes of Oak Bay made a direct appeal Wednesday to Greater Victoria citizens to support the ailing United Red Feather-Red Cross Appeal.

This year's target is $85,000—the amount needed to keep 23 agencies and the Red Cross operating for the next year.

To 5 p.m. Wednesday $531,296 had been paid or pledged. This is 81.4 per cent of the goal.

Mayor Hawes said he was greatly distressed at the possibility that the appeal this year might fall short of its objective.

The many charitable and service agencies kept alive by the United Appeal must not be let down by our city, he said.

"I appeal to those who regularly support the drive for funds who have not yet given to come forward."

(Donations can be mailed to the Community Chest, 1351 Cook Street, or they will be picked up if donors phone 385-6708.)

In addition, the mayor suggested, there might be new residents who had moved here in the past year and had not been called on. He urged them to do the same.

"The splendid work that is done by these many organizations is appreciated by all of us," the mayor said, "and I am sure that if we all cooperate, this appeal will again reach its objective and enable these organizations to carry on."

Lynch at Lunch

Charles Lynch, chief of Southern News Services, will address the Canadian Club of Victoria at a luncheon at 12:15 p.m. Tuesday in Holyrood House.

Election Warms Up in Saanich

Five File for Four Seats

Five Saanich candidates have filed for the Dec. 7 election for four aldermanic seats.

Incumbents are Leslie Passmore, Harold Todd, Ed Lam and Alan Newberry. All four have filed. The fifth is Frank Waring, Gordon Campbell, unsuccessful candidate for the reeve-ship last December, has said he will run but to 5 p.m. Wednesday he had not filed. Mr. Passmore, a veteran of 27 years on council, said he was interested in getting the sewer program going as soon as possible.

He is in favor of continuing the "recreation program which we have started so successfully" and in initiating housing for the aged in the near future.

"The record that I have built up over the years would indicate to most people the policies which I espouse," he said.

Mr. Newberry, 31-year-old education supervisor, marks for priority attention in 1969 pollution control, housing, recreation facilities, development of beach access, garbage collection and disposal, outdoor recreation for senior citizens and other issues.

"I can suggest I can continue to provide the vigor of youth," he said, "a concern for the community and the stability of a responsible involvement. I have stood and will continue to stand for open discussion of public issues. I shall continue to promote the involvement of the community in the political process."

School planner Jack Hubbard, 4922 Lochside, announced Wednesday that he would run for election to the Saanich school board.

He became the second candidate to seek the seat being vacated by retiring board chairman Nora Lindsay.

Stanley Oakes of 814 Royal Oak Avenue, a civil engineer, is also contesting the seat which represents rural Saanich.

Mr. Hubbard is a planner for the Greater Victoria school district. For years previously he was involved in school board finances for the department of education.

He said Wednesday that he was seeking election so he could put his experience to use in his own school district.

Curtis Rakes Loffmark:

Sea Policy Ignores Land Slime

Health Minister Ralph Loffmark worries about sea pollution but ignores "backyards soggy with effluent and ditches covered with greenish slime."

That denunciation of the minister was made Wednesday by Saanich Mayor Hugh Curtis in an address to the Victoria Real Estate Board.

He departed from his prepared text to make it clear he was criticizing the minister personally.

The mayor said he was not making a political attack on the Social Credit government, and had high praise for the "co-operation and understanding" of Resources Minister Ray Wilton and Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell.

But, he said, Mr. Loffmark's stand on pollution control showed he was "a classic example of a man who has turned his attention in the wrong direction."

Mayor Curtis charged that Mr. Loffmark's concern over discharge of untreated sewage into coastal waters was not balanced by concern over land pollution.

He said that by concentrating only on the eventual disposal of sewage, the minister was frustrating the efforts of municipalities attempting to extend sewer systems.

Mayor Curtis said the health minister's stand about sea pollution was in opposition to that of the Pollution Control Board and, since the impasse had not been resolved, no new sewer construction was being allowed except to areas served by malfunctioning septic tanks.

As a result, new development had to take place only in areas suitable for septic tank installations, and was spreading all over Saanich. "Flooding by percolation," the mayor called it.

Treatment Unnecessary

Mayor Curtis said no one in municipal offices was irrevocably opposed to treatment of sewage before it was discharged into the sea, but the best expert opinion was that such treatment was not necessary.

It might become necessary eventually, Mayor Curtis said, and he said for such treatment plants could be set aside now for that eventuality.

"But in the meantime, let's get going with the task at hand—the most important problem in the Capital Region—sewer construction."

Mayor Curtis said the whole program was being held up while the government agencies resolved their disagreement on whether or not sewage treatment was necessary.

In the meantime, land was being polluted, housing construction to meet the shortage of homes was delayed, and the shortage of sewerage was keeping up high lot prices.

"The problem clearly lies with the provincial government and its contradictory health department and Pollution Control Board requirements," he said. "We look to the government for the solution."

Health Minister Loffmark, interviewed by phone in Vancouver, shrugged off what he termed "the personal attack on me by Mayor Curtis," but added his department's policy on sewage treatment was aimed at preventing both land and sea pollution.

"I guess I'm a little older and more philosophical now," the minister said, "so these personal attacks don't disturb me. I guess I've learned the truth of that old saying in politics: 'If you can't stand the heat, stay out of the kitchen.'"

Clean Beaches Wanted

He added: "It is the objective of the health department to clean up land pollution, but not to stop there—we want clean beaches as well."

"This is what the public wants, I believe, and I'm going to do everything in my power to see that we achieve this goal."

Mr. Loffmark said the policy statement sent to all municipalities on the question of sewage treatment clearly outlined three exceptions under which health department certificates would be granted for new sewer lines, even if there were no sewage treatment facilities included in the project.

The first concerned sewerage of an existing built-up area; the second was to end existing land pollution; and the third applied where a municipality gave acceptable assurances that financing and construction of sewage treatment facilities would be undertaken within a reasonable period of time after granting the permit, the minister added.

"In all cases where inadequate septic tanks have caused land pollution and new sewer lines are proposed, my department has granted the necessary permit promptly," Mr. Loffmark said.

Earlier, Saanich Social Credit MLA John Tisdale, who was present at the luncheon where Mayor Curtis spoke, called it "a low political attack" on a minister of the Crown, and accused the mayor of resorting to "despicable name-calling."

New-Coin Scoffer Provokes Wrath

A pried-open vending machine at Postal Station "A" was reported to Saanich police Wednesday by postal authorities. A constable and a detective who investigated said the machine had been kicked in, and added to their report, "in disgust that it would not take the new money."

Record High In City

After a record high temperature in Victoria Wednesday, things should get back to normal through the end of the week.

Gonzales weather office reported 28 degrees under Wednesday's sun, breaking the old Nov. 20 mark of 57.4 in 1945.

Cooler temperatures were forecast for today and Friday, with a few clear periods.

The heavy winds have been coming by a way of a storm, dormant off the coast, which has pumped air in from the southwest.

B.C. Grants

Victoria, Saanich Benefit

Victoria and Saanich were among the biggest beneficiaries when the cabinet announced the grants to municipalities in lieu of taxes on provincial government property.

The total amount of the 15-mill provincial grants jumped $143,595 to $750,688. The largest share of this increase, spread over the whole province, went to cities whose grant total accounts for $417,410, an increase of $79,042.

Victoria will receive an additional $45,128 for a total of $162,475, the largest single grant paid to any community in the province. Saanich, although smaller in dollar value, doubles its grant in lieu of provincial taxes in a single year—from $6,951 in 1967 to $14,192.

The provincial grants are paid on a basis of 15 mills on the full assessed value of provincial land within municipal boundaries and three-quarters of the full assessed value of improvements.

On this basis, neither Oak Bay, nor Esquimalt nor Central Saanich receives any grants. The grant to North Saanich dropped from $224 in 1967 to $182.

Coroner Fines Juror

Coroner Edmond Jorre de St. Jorre fined an inquest juror $40 Wednesday, after the man failed to appear Monday night to serve as foreman of the jury inquiring into the death of Mrs. Dorothy Schofield.

William D. Thompson, of 1121 Catherine, paid the fine and said he failed to appear because of a mixup in dates. He had previously served at two sessions of the inquest.

Mr. St. Jorre outlined his powers under the Coroner's Act in such instances Tuesday. They allow him to impose a fine of $100 or 30 days in jail for jurors who fail to appear and those who appear but refuse to serve.

He said Tuesday, "I'm going to enforce the provisions of the Coroner's Act regarding jurors men to appear," and added that jurors giving good reason for their actions would not be punished.

The coroner said although a warrant was issued, Mr. Thompson was not arrested and was waiting at his office door when he came in early Wednesday.

The $40 fine was the amount of bond entered into by Mr. Thompson when he was sworn to the jury.

Mass Meeting Friday

Servants Protest Spreads

By IAN STREET, Legislative Reporter

A mass meeting of civil servants will be held shortly after noon Friday in the Crystal Garden to protest what provincial employees spokesmen have described as the government's "continuing cheap labor policy."

Also Brady, Victoria branch president of the B.C. Government Employees Association, said Wednesday that approximately 1,000 local civil servants were expected to turn out for the meeting, which is scheduled to run from 12:30 p.m. to 1 p.m.

On Friday evening a similar gathering of government employees on the Lower Mainland is being staged in the Pender Auditorium.

PUBLIC ATTENTION

Norman Richards, provincial president of the BGEA, said the demonstrations both here and in Vancouver were designed to focus public attention on the plight of government employees who have so far waged an unsuccessful battle for what they term "fair wages."

BGEA, with about 12,000 members throughout the province, claims to represent about 60 per cent of the permanent civil servants in the B.C. government.

NO INTENTION

"We have no intention of striking," said Mr. Richards, "which in any case is prohibited for civil servants, so this leaves us very little option but to hold protest demonstrations to underline our stand to the public, MLAs and the cabinet."

He said it was "rank discrimination" for provincial civil servants to be denied the right to bargain collectively, while their municipal and federal counterparts and even employees of provincial crown corporations had collective bargaining rights.

WAGE LEVELS

He noted that a BGEA appeal against current wage levels, heard by a special cabinet committee last July 29 and subsequently rejected, was followed by a statement from Premier Bennett which said provincial government wages should be comparable with those paid by other provinces.

The position of the provincial executive on this issue is simple, Mr. Richards said: "We live in B.C., work in B.C., and expect to receive wages comparable with other workers in B.C."

SECOND POINT

Mr. Brady said a second statement by the premier, to the effect that the civil service commission had been ordered to make a crash study of wages and bring in its recommendations in time for action in the next budget, was unacceptable.

This, the local president said, would place the BGEA "in the same position as in December, 1967, when we presented our brief to the Civil Service Commission."

He added: "The cold, hard facts are that our employer will not recognize that we as workers in B.C. have to maintain families, homes, and other social responsibilities at the same level as other workers while receiving substandard wages."

Colorful Filipino Fashions Seen at Hospital

The showing of historical Philippine fashions was opened by the Consul General of Philippines, F. S. Lamdagan at the St. Joseph's Hospital Women's Auxiliary bazaar Wednesday was certainly something novel in the way of fashion shows. Even might be termed novel entertainment.

Especially the candle light dance by Immona Bibera and Linda Pilamor.

Everyone was holding their breath as the girls danced holding lighted candles and finishing with one girl holding all candles — one on the top of her head.

"Don't think I'll try that until New Year's Eve," I heard Mary Michaux tell someone.

The richly colored and embroidered clothes were shown from The Philippines for the show.

This wasn't too difficult, Marcelina Bolanos, president of the Philippine Association here explained. "All the girls have their own dressmaker at home so they simply wrote to their parents describing the type of costume, the material and color. Measurements were no problem, being already in the dressmaker's books.

The dress of The Philippines is widely varied from northern Luzon through the central islands to the Moro dress worn by the lady of Mindanao their parents describing the

It is also varied by four centuries of colonization. The rule of Spain resulted in sweeping changes in Filipino women's dress. Spanish ideas of female seclusion and modesty brought about the concealment of the feminine form with wide sweeping skirts and trains.

The coming of the Americans in 1890 started a more modern trend, skirts trailing less yardage and trailing trains stopped trailing on the ground and sleeves were shortened.

Many of the dresses had the national butterfly sleeves that today may be removed so that the dress may be worn for more than one occasion. Each dress shown warranted a detailed description — they were all so lovely. But we'll settle for the bridal gown of traditional white satin and chastity lace styled with the butterfly sleeves and the formal pardo, the wide collar that completes the modern "terno."

One of the most beautiful dresses, of deep red velvet, lavishly trained, and decorated with pearls, rhinestones, tulle beads and sequins a dress to be worn during the Mayflower Festival — missed the morning show.

Nena Castillo, the model, got held up in the beauty salon — her hair wasn't dry. "I'll set up a beauty salon in my own place, next time," said Marcelina Bolanos, convener of the show.

Mildred Fejel, the only model not pictured, is a trained nurse as are most of the others.

Mr. and Mrs. Norman Ware, of 3342 Henderson Road, were the winners of the wonderful trip by CPA jet to Hawaii and a 14 night stay at the new Aloha Surf Hotel in Waikiki. Mrs. Ware was convener of the bazaar. The draw was held at the climax of the successful St. Joseph's Ladies Auxiliary annual bazaar in the Nurses auditorium on Wednesday evening. The gratifying sum of more than $5,500 was realized at the affair.

At the show Dorothy Ware, convener, Lucille Cownden, co-convener, Marcelina Bolanos, Mary Michaux, the Auxiliary's veteran publicity expert and myself went into the beautifully decorated lounge.

Delicious sandwiches, small cakes including chocolate covered rum balls (the work of Arthur Cownden I was told, though hard to believe — he made 200 of them) and coffee was set out for the Consul General.

After what we considered a decent time interval when the Consul hadn't arrived we decided not to let the coffee get too cold.

And Marcelina, a great enthusiast about her own country, kept us interested by telling what a beautiful modern city Manila is. And that we all should really take a trip there.

The eternal problem of women who go out a lot not wanting to wear the same dress too often has been neatly solved by Filipino women, Marcelina told us.

She herself was wearing a black velvet, a sleeveless long dress with fanning fish nurses, 2,000 doctors, the rest architects, engineers, accountants, etc. In B.C. there are between 800 and 900.

He was very pleased about the fashion show and would like to see more dances combined with such shows. And he would like to see more gift imports from his country. He suggested a stall for these at the next bazaar.

The Consul was so enthusiastic that he practically had us on our way to Manila.

But then he was equally enthusiastic about Victoria. The peaceful atmosphere and the beauty had impressed him. And the weather (that lovely 60-degree sunshine).

When he was asked recently by an American whether he would like to live in New York or San Francisco, in true diplomat style his answer was "I would rent New York and keep San Francisco."

Bugged Mattress Prophetic?

It bothers most parents that their children do not know what they want to be when they grow up. It bothers some of us that they do.

I've got one kid who wants to be a pilgrim. He says they wear mud clothes. Another one wants to be a spy. (He hasn't said for whose side, but he wears an armband and has my mattress bugged.)

Nurse Pupils To Confer

The B.C. Student Nurses' conference will be held at Royal Jubilee Hospital 9 to 4 p.m. Nov. 30.

Main guest speakers at the conference will be Y.M-Y.W.C.A. social workers John Durkin and John Sorocky, president of the B.C. Student Psychiatric Nurses' Association.

Student nurses from all over the province will be attending.

One is still open for offers. He is inclined to change his mind every three hours. When he was five he wanted to own a lot of houses.

The idea of a son in real estate gave all of us a firm, secure feeling. "You've made a wise choice," his father counselled. "There is always a demand for good housing and a good feeling knowing you are supplying a real need."

"I don't care about that," he said. "I just want to play on the steps without someone yelling at me."

Sometimes in the cold winters that followed, I used to sit before the fire and visualize my 40-year-old barking realtor-son playing on the steps of his houses. And I'd put an aspirin in a coke and drink it.

He went through other phases, of course. For an entire week he wanted to be knot-hole driller on a building crew; then an Olympic torch lighter and one day he even aspired to be an orphan. ("People are always giving them candy.")

Last week he produced his biggest aspiration to date, "I want to be a farmer," he announced at dinner.

The table was quiet. His brother was the only one with strength enough to ask why. "Because," he said, "they get up real early in the morning get all their work done and then they have all day to sit around and watch television."

"That's not exactly the way it is," explained my husband. "Farmers work very hard and long hours."

"Have you checked those TV antennas?" he replied.

"Those are lightning rods!" his father said. "Besides, it costs a lot of money to be a farmer."

"I got that all figured out," he said. "I entered a name-cow contest. The first prize is either the cow or $500. I'm going to take the cow and that'll start me off."

"What did you name the cow?" asked his father. "BIG BILL!" he said proudly.

No one said anything for quite a while. It could be worse, I guess. He could go into gynecology.

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: A couple of months ago my child cut his hand and I had to wait 30 minutes while my husband closed his shop and came home to drive us to the hospital. (There is no bus service out here and a taxi takes forever.)

After that terrible incident my husband promised to teach me to drive. But he made me so nervous (called me dumb and a fraidy cat) that I gave up trying to learn from him. When I announced I was enrolling in driving school he screamed, "no man is going to teach MY wife anything. It would be a reflection on me."

We have two cars and a truck so it isn't that he is afraid I will deprive him of the car. There are so many things I could do if I could drive. I feel like a dummy staying home while a car sits in the garage. I need advice.

— STUCK
Dear Stuck: Don't ask His Worship if you can take driving lessons. Tell him. Explain that the next emergency might be a matter of life and death and you aren't taking any chances.

Dear Ann Landers: My problem is my brother, although he did not cause it on purpose. Rusty happens to be a very good athlete. He is tops at just about everything you can think of. Rusty has won track medals, tennis cups, and played on the baseball and football teams when he was in high school. This fall he enters college on a football scholarship.

I just started high school. Everyone knows me as Rusty's brother. They think just because my brother was a great athlete I should be one, too. Well, I'm not. I haven't got his build and I don't have the interest in it. I do a lot better with my head than with my muscles. So what's wrong with that? I have always been in the upper five per cent of my class and I want to get a science scholarship, not a football scholarship.

Please print my letter. Maybe people will have a better understanding of my problem and leave me alone — especially the coaches. BRAIN INSTEAD OF BRAIN
Dear Brain: Here's your letter and I hope people will have a better understanding of your problem and leave you alone. Especially the coaches.

Dear Ann Landers: No doubt your readers are getting sick and tired of reading letters about "my husband's mother." Well, this one is going to be different. It's his father I can't stand.

Grandpa's wife died eight months ago and he moved into this apartment building. He has a key to our front door and uses it whenever he feels like it. Last night at 2 a.m. he was prowling around in the kitchen looking for a can of beer. At six o'clock this morning he was in our bathroom looking for a razor blade.

Grampa has dinner here regularly, which I don't mind. But I DO mind when he picks up tramps in the bars and tries to pass them off as daughters of old friends. Even our 12-year-old is on to him.

I've told my husband I am fed up but he says he can't ask his dad to stay out of our home. And it's true, as my husband points out, it would be a great inconvenience for us to move as we are close to everything. What do you suggest? — SCREAMING MEEEMIES

Dear Meem: You're close to everything, all right — including a nervous breakdown. My advice is to move. It could be the beginning of a new set of rules — like no key for grampa and no uninvited "daughters" for dinner.

ALBANY, N.Y. — Adam Clayton Powell was rebuffed by New York state's highest court in his effort to free himself of a 30-day jail sentence that has been hanging over his head for two years. The Court of Appeals unanimously sustained lower court rulings finding Powell in contempt in connection with a libel judgment against the Harlem Democrat.

ANGERS, France — United States Ambassador Sargent Shriver inaugurated the Place du President Kennedy before about 800 persons and a military band in this town in western France.

WASHINGTON — Sen. Edward Kennedy (D-Mass.) accompanied by seven Kennedy children, visited the grave of Robert Kennedy on the 43rd anniversary of the assassinated senator's birth.

TORONTO — Alfred Gagnier, 54, who received a heart transplant at Toronto General Hospital Nov. 13, has died.

Sirhan Target Really LBJ?

NEW YORK (UPI) — Dr. M. T. Mehdi, secretary-general of the 20,000-member action committee on American-Arab relations, said Wednesday that Sirhan Sirhan, charged with the murder of Sen. Robert Kennedy, may have had President Johnson as his real target.

In a newly published book entitled Kennedy and Sirhan... Why? Mehdi said Johnson had, under Zionist Jewish pressure, become totally pro-Israel and anti-Arab and would be Sirhan's natural target.

HEIR APPARENT
However, Mehdi said, "If Sirhan was unable to get his target, he would try the heir apparent: Robert Kennedy held that title."

The book, which deals with the psycho-social and political forces which led the Palestinian Arab refugee to shoot Kennedy last June, declares Sirhan is sane — "as sane as the man who decided to drop the atomic bomb on Hiroshima."

"Both took political action, one in the name of organized American society; the other implemented his private decision privately," Mehdi wrote. "Sirhan's act was illegal."

Mehdi said if there were five million Arabs in the United States instead of that number of "Zionist Jews," then "every politician, including the late Senator Kennedy, would be praising Arab nationalism and learn to sing in Arabic."

The author said he has arranged for profits from the book to go toward a campaign to prevent the sale of Phantom jets to Israel "so that Mr. Kennedy's death will not have been a wasted tragedy."

Criminal Code

No Division 'Spineless'

OTTAWA (CP) — Justice Minister John Turner was castigated in the Commons Wednesday for not fighting to have the forthcoming omnibus bill amending the Criminal Code broken into sections.

Turner had just told the House during debate on revised justice department spending estimates of $18,292,000 in 1968-69 that he intends to introduce the Criminal Code bill shortly.

Melvin McQuaid (PC—Cardigan) said a number of MPs object to some sections of the bill — he mentioned those easing the law on homosexuality and abortion — while supporting others.

Turner had indicated last July that he might present the bill in sections. However, Prime Minister Trudeau, who introduced the bill last December when he was justice minister, had decreed otherwise.

Faced with a choice of "falling into line or picking up his marbles and going home," Turner had followed Trudeau's dictates.

"I don't think Adolf Hitler ruled with a firmer hand and I don't think there was ever a more docile group of cabinet ministers," said McQuaid, a former attorney-general of Prince Edward Island.

McQuaid added that if the medical profession ever gets around to spinal transplants, it would have an open field with the cabinet "because these men are spineless."

He urged Turner to press for division of the bill, which amends not only the Criminal Code but the parole, penitentiaries, prisons and reformatories, combines investigation and customs tariff acts.

"Be not afraid any more of the great white father," McQuaid said. "The prime minister will not fire you. You are too good a minister."

Tough Line Unchanged

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau's tough line on marijuana offenders, enunciated last winter when he was justice minister, still stands.

Asked by Gerald W. Baldwin (PC—Peace River) whether there has been any change in policy on drug prosecutions since Trudeau was minister, Justice Minister John Turner replied: "No sir."

Marijuana now comes under the Narcotics Control Act and possession can lead to a seven-year prison term.

Society Formed to Shelter Youth in Need

By ARNOLD OLSON

NANAIMO—The first step toward a receiving home for the Nanaimo area was made Wednesday afternoon when Nanaimo Youth Services Society was formed.

The constitution was adopted and officers elected: John Noble, Brannan Lake Boys School superintendent, chairman; vice-chairmen, Father Leo Robert and Lorn Veregin; secretary, Mrs. Sylvia Fredricksen, and treasurer, Bob Koster.

The society's first project will be to establish receiving home to provide immediate emergency housing for any youth—children who are lost, have run away from home, whose parents (due to illness or accident) cannot care for them, and wards of the court. They all will find food and shelter.

Mr. Noble said the society would contact municipal and provincial governments for co-operation in setting up the home.

Locally, the Lion's Club, Family and Children's Court Committee and other organizations are ready to back the society.

Mr. Noble said, "The home will depend upon the need and public response."

He said the society still has a lot of study to do before deciding if the home will be for boys or girls.

"It could be for one, or both. It all depends upon what is needed most," he said.

He said the home may not be the only project the society will sponsor.

"The way is open for future developments as far as our constitution is concerned. It's up to the directors and officers to decide," he said.

"Right now the home is the primary project and we're hoping to involve local young people in it too."

As he left for an appointment as guest speaker to Nanaimo senior high school girls, he added, "The girls might just be interested in this too, it's up to them."

Fluoride Piped To Town

Checking feed line of Gold River pumping station where fluoride enters town's water supply is Larry Benchoe, new superintendent of works. Program has just started at station, below town of 2,700 near the Gold River's banks. However water is not drawn from river, but from artesian well.

'Clean It Up All at Once' Works Bylaw Mooted

By KLAUS MUENTER

NORTH COWICHAN

Council next year will study the feasibility of a public works bylaw to bring public works projects up to standards.

Ald. George Whitaker, making the proposal at Wednesday afternoon's council meeting, said rather than raising the mill rate each year without great visible results, the bylaw would give the municipality a chance to "catch up with projects that should be done."

RECREATION BYLAW

He said the suggested bylaw should be for $1,000,000 or $1,500,000. Mayor Donald Morton noted if there are merits to the proposed bylaw council would consider the proposal.

Two opponents of the bylaw were Ald. Gerry Smith and Ald. Tom Burge. The former warned, "We still have the recreation bylaw coming up and then another one of $1,000,000 or even $1,500,000.

"The taxpayers will only stand for so much."

He said ratepayers during last year's municipal election campaign had been told a debt from a similar program would be paid off this year.

WOULD BE UNFAIR

Ald. Burge stressed it would be unfair to state the municipality is behind in its public works program.

"I think we gain a bit every year and I am in favor of paying as we go along."

The proposed 1969 public works budget amounts to $476,375, but it is subject to revisions.

Other proposed expenditures for next year which also may be altered in the process of preparing the 1969 budget are: $8,700, forestry program; $45,000, equipment list; $10,000, utilities, and $64,000 recreation.

Ald. Dennis Hogan told council the municipality's financial obligation to the local branch of the SPCA will be $6,000 next year.

The sum includes 50 cents per capita plus 20 per cent of collected licence fees.

The city of Duncan will have to contribute $2,000.

CHIP IN $5,000

Council agreed in principle to chip in to the tune of $5,000 if necessary for the acquisition of additional land for the Cowichan Valley Forest Museum.

Total cost of the strip of land, which also would give good access to museum property, was hinted at as being about $16,500.

Mayor Morton said the museum society hopes half of that amount would be shared between the municipality and the city of Duncan.

The city's share would be about $3,000.

'Fair to Both Sides'

Teachers' Pact Ratified

NANAIMO — School board Wednesday night ratified a 5.7 per cent teachers' wage increase for 1969.

The increase, affecting 443 teachers, will mean an additional $200,000 on the 1968 salary budget of $3,500,000, an increase of 1.8 mills.

The salary increases were greater for teachers in lower wage brackets.

"We are pleased that we avoided arbitration and that our negotiations with teachers were resolved at the local level," trustee Gordon McGillivray, negotiating committee chairman, said.

FAIR TO ALL

"I think the settlement was fair to all concerned."

William McKay, who headed the teachers' negotiating committee, said "While the salary increase was below that which the teachers feel the present economic conditions warrant, they recognize the difficult position in which the school board finds itself under the new school financial formula."

$25 ANNUALLY

The percentage increase is parallel to neighboring school boards but Nanaimo area teachers, on a higher scale, receive $25 more annually.

In other school board business: Five school board trustees, whose terms end shortly, will run again in the Dec. 7 elections.

They are Mrs. Margaret Fuller, Mrs. Margaret Warwick, Mrs. Doris Meynard, Doug McKenzie and Gordon McGillivray.

Trustee Fuller expressed concern for PTAs, saying they did a splendid job when active. "I hope the local PTAs don't fade into the distance like so many have. They can be a very strong voice," she said, referring to negotiations with the education department.

Trustee Meynard suggested that Indian reservations be canvassed to try to get children into local kindergartens.

Man Survives Car's Plunge

John Euloth, 3227 Linwood, survived a 150 foot drop from the Malahat Summit after his southbound car hit a guard rail and went over the edge.

He was admitted to Cowichan District Hospital with possible rib fractures and cuts and bruises.

Mr. Euloth managed to climb back to the highway where he hailed a passing car and was taken to hospital.

Standing Ovation Accorded Cellist

By BILL THOMAS

Soviet cellist Karina Georgian drew a standing ovation Wednesday in the McPherson Playhouse from what seemed like the largest house the recital series has drawn this season. Miss Georgian deserved her applause for she offered a most satisfying concert.

Her playing is almost a physical experience for the audience as she coaxes the music out of her Guarnerius instrument. Miss Georgian reminds me of Glenn Gould in that she has a sensuous attachment to her instrument. Her involvement with the music produces movements so that the playing becomes almost a ballet. It produces some truly delightful effects.

There are moments when the actual technique shows minor flaws as in the Locatelli Sonata but these are easily forgotten in the romance of her playing. Such a warm, passionate musical experience could hardly be given with a totally technical approach.

The opening offering, Vercini's Largo, was pleasant but the Brahms seemed a trifle long and it was difficult to sustain interest.

Miss Georgian saved the best until last. She played the Adagio from the Ballet Cenerella by Prokofiev, the waltz from the Snow Flower by the same composer and then Stravinsky's Italian Suite.

The Italian Suite was a total success. It exhibited all the facets of Miss Georgian's talents. A full measure of credit for this exciting evening must go to Robin Wood who accompanied the talented cellist.

Labor Council Briefs

Night Traffic Court Urged

A night traffic court for Greater Victoria was urged at the Victoria Labor Council's meeting in the Union Centre Wednesday night.

The meeting agreed it was too costly to go to court, especially when witnesses were involved. Edwin Haw said, "No one should lose time just because of a charge."

"Law enforcement officers

Roadblocks Likely Any Night

Victoria motorists who dodge the Friday night police roadblock checks by not driving on Friday nights will have to find some other way to avoid them now.

Friday night roadside checks for faulty cars and impaired drivers, a police tradition established for some time, will be spread through the week from now to Christmas, a traffic department spokesman said.

will have to be more careful in issuing tickets, and they'll have to prepare their cases," John Schilski argued.

One member said most people would rather pay the fine than go to court, whether guilty or not.

An advertisement for part-time sales help in a local department store brought on a debate about moonlighting.

"Two of those part-time jobs plus a few hours equals a full-time job," said Jack Chapman of the International Typographical Union.

A letter circulated through all the local unions asking members to fight moonlighting and discuss the issue, was hailed as the most effective way of handling moonlighting at the moment.

Black-bordered cards of acknowledgment were received from Mrs. Ethel Kennedy, wife of the late Senator Robert Kennedy.

One card bore a quotation from the book of Matthew, "The other was a memorial card to Senator Kennedy, including lines from Tennyson and a quotation from Martin Luther King.

A motion to thank NDP leader Robert Strachan for helping the labor movement in the province was passed.

It was suggested that Gordon Campbell, candidate for alderman in Saanich, address the next Victoria Labor council meeting.

Grit Chief To Speak

Allan Williams, chairman of the provincial Liberal caucus, will speak to Saanich-Tsawwassen Liberal Association's annual meeting at 8 p.m. Monday in Holyrood House.

Kettles Soon

Salvation Army Christmas Kettles will appear on downtown Victoria streets from Dec. 10 to Dec. 24. The donations provide Christmas hamper and a winter relief program.

Centre Approves Lambrick Estate Plans

The Gordon Head Community Centre committee Wednesday night approved sitting plans on the Lambrick estate.

The 125,000 community centre and swimming pool is to be built on 5.5 acres in the southwest corner of the estate, and 10.3 acres in the northwest corner is to be the site of a junior-senior high school, subject to approval by the school board.

The rest of the estate, 22.8 acres, is to be used as parkland, with provision for 3.9 acres, touching the school site, to be reserved for future school expansion. It could be five years before the school is built.

Park Superintendent Bert Richmond said the plan was "the best we've come up with, far superior to previous plans."

Mayor Hugh Curtis said the plan was "a terrific idea."

"I'm glad to see the sites nicely knitted together, and I hope the school board will go along with it."

The proximity of the two sites is planned for mutual use of park and school facilities by students and the public.

The size of the pool was discussed — 84 feet long and 45 feet wide — and some details of piping, chlorination and filtering.

Adventurer Awards for 31

Adventurer awards were presented to 31 Scouts of the 5th Garry Oak Troop for climbing 7,800-foot Black Tusk Mountain during a nine-day camp in Garibaldi Provincial Park last summer.

Executive Commissioner Jack Scrivener and Assistant

Regional Commissioner for Training Ken Lewis presented the awards recently.

The boys, 11 to 15 years old, planned the entire summer camp operation themselves several months in advance.

rank from District Commissioner Ralph Newstead.

They were Jamie Ramsay, Bill Laurie, Owen Brock, David Knight, Alan Knight, Bruce Gillespie, Norman Pearson, Steve Creed, Danny Belcher, Trevor Dawson and Michael Doggart.

Labor, Liberals Raise Storm Over Quebec Liquor Strike

MONTREAL (CP) — Talks continued Wednesday to settle the strike that started June 26 against the Quebec Liquor Board. But there was no immediate word on progress.

In Quebec City, meanwhile, the Opposition Liberals were blocked Wednesday in an attempt to have the legislature's committee on government boards renew discussion on the QLB conflict.

Opposition Leader Jean Lesage, Pierre Laporte (L.-Chamblay) and Jerome Choquette (L.-Outremont) demanded reopening of discussions on the government's salary policy and incidents in the strike.

CLOSE VOTE
But Premier Jean-Jacques Bertrand submitted a motion to adjourn the committee until Dec. 6 and it was adopted by an 11 to 10 vote.

Bertrand said he hoped an agreement could be reached at the negotiation table by Dec. 6. Marcel Pepin, president of the Confederation of National Trade Unions, attacked the Quebec government and Labor Minister Maurice Bellemare at a news conference following Wednesday's committee session.

THE CONFLICT
"It makes us sick to see that the government refuses to discuss the conflict at the committee and to throw some light on this situation," Mr. Pepin said.

Pepin said he could not understand why Bellemare had not intervened yet in the dispute.

The 3,000 QLB employees, affiliated with the CNTU, have been on strike in support of demands for higher wages.

WEEKLY BOOST
The government is offering a $16 weekly increase spread over three years while the unions are seeking a $27-a-week raise.

In St. Jerome, Que., Judge Lucien Thibault, appointed to head a three-man royal commission investigation of illicit liquor sales in Quebec, said Wednesday the commission will be getting down to work "within a few days."

PEDESTRIANS SUFFER INJURIES
Two pedestrians were taken to hospitals from separate accidents which happened in quick succession Tuesday night.

Mrs. Molly Cameron, 55, of 839 Coleville Road, was taken to St. Joseph's Hospital for treatment of a head cut after being struck at Fort and Wharf by a car police said was driven by Jack Ward, 1481 Finlayson, at 10:11 p.m.

Forty minutes later, there was a call to Cook and Hillside where Mary Bunch, 39, of 2816 Gosworth, was struck by a car as she ran across the street. She had head and face cuts and a possible broken leg.

Earlier, Jean Gray, of 2888 Austin, was taken to St. Joseph's Hospital for treatment of a head injury after the taxi in which she was a passenger was struck from behind, sending it into a car in front.

Leisure Strain On Brain

LANGLEY (CP) — Education Minister Donald Brocks said students here that the trend to shorter working days and more leisure time necessitates a well-rounded education.

This included music, art and literature, he said Tuesday at the Douglas Day ceremonies held to commemorate the founding of the mainland colony of British Columbia Nov. 19, 1858.

Premier W. A. C. Bennett said Sir James Douglas, the first governor, would be pleased to see what had happened to British Columbia. However, the province was still in a pioneering stage and only starting to be built up.

Commercial Transport Minister Frank Richter assured a delegation from Fort Langley Board of Trade that owners of property on the proposed railway route to link with the Roberts Bank deep-sea port line will have their choice of selling all their property or just enough to provide the right-of-way.

Trend Across Canada?

Church Membership Drops

TORONTO (CP) — A former moderator of the United Church of Canada said Wednesday a declining membership in United Church congregations in Toronto may reflect a trend across the country.

"I believe it's roughly the same pattern from Halifax to Vancouver," Very Rev. Ernest M. Howe, moderator of the United Church from 1964 to 1966, said in an interview.

MANY REASONS

He was commenting on a church-sponsored study prepared by Project Planning Ltd., which shows that more than 5,500 members of 152 United Church congregations in Toronto have left since 1963 while the city's population increased 16.7 per cent. It represents a drop of more than five per cent.

Changes in the ethnic composition of neighborhoods and increasing incomes—which mean travel, cottages and vacations—are among contributing factors, the survey says.

NO TIME

In addition, low family incomes forcing mothers to work left parents no time for church programs and many professional people were moving farther away from established churches to new areas.

"It means that the church must adapt to the changing times," Dr. Robert McCure, present moderator, said in a telephone interview from Fort Frances, Ont.

Dr. McCure, the church's first lay moderator, said weekday services might be one immediate move.

The study is the first of a seven-part examination of the United Church's future role in the community, expected to cost about $110,000 over a two-year period.

Among its findings:

● More than a third of United Church clergymen interviewed were dissatisfied with their jobs because the church has not kept pace with the times. Half the clergymen were generally satisfied.

● Many churches have two seats for every churchgoer and two-thirds of the rooms in church buildings could be eliminated.

● Membership in men's and women's organizations dropped 50 per cent between 1961 and last year and only 42 per cent of church members regularly attend worship services. Sunday school membership has dropped to 42,543 from 6,585 in six years.

● More than a third of congregations studied have a membership in which more than half the regular churchgoers are more than 50 years old.

Cleric Undismayed

TORONTO (CP) — Rev. Russell D. Horsburgh says he is not concerned that the United Church of Canada's Kent presbytery has rejected his application for readmission to the ministry.

Presbytery officials announced Tuesday they would recommend against readmission when the church's London conference meets in May at Windsor, Ont., but said the action "does not close the door to Mr.

Horsburgh's readmission at a future date."

"I'm not worried," Mr. Horsburgh, 49, said after hearing the decision. "I think in the final analysis they will make a Christian decision."

"The Kent presbytery obviously has some members who hold lingering prejudices and do not have faith in the Supreme Court of Canada,"

The presbytery gave no reason for its decision.

Changed in 1964 with contributing to juvenile delinquency by allowing an apartment at Park Street United Church, Chatham, Ont., to be used for immoral purposes, Mr. Horsburgh was convicted on five of eight counts and served four months of a one-year jail term.

He was acquitted of the charges after the Supreme Court of Canada ordered a new trial.

Father Barred From Family

VANCOUVER (CP)—A Vancouver engineer Wednesday was ordered to stay away from his wife and eight-year-old daughter for two years.

Magistrate Douglas Hume laid down the conditions for Robert Kiddie, 39, after studying a psychiatric report.

Kiddie was given a suspended sentence on charges of assaulting his wife with a flatiron and prodding her with a barbecue skewer and was placed on a $1,000 peace bond for two years, on condition he stay away from his family.

Mrs. Elizabeth Kiddie claimed in court that her husband terrified her so much she secretly took out a $10,000 life insurance policy naming her daughter as beneficiary.

From AP, UPI

CHARLESTON, S.C. — Writer Gordon Langley Hall, adopted son of Dame Margaret Rutherford, has changed his sex through an operation and is planning to marry his Negro chauffeur—with the approval of most of his British family.

One of the few reservations, says the new Miss Dawn Langley Hall, is that of a great aunt, who commented: "I do wish Dawn wasn't marrying a Baptist."

Hall, who has written biographies of Princess Margaret, Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis and Lady Bird Johnson, is to marry John Paul Simmons, 30. The wedding date, however, was indefinite.

"It's all very mysterious," said Herman Schindler, a close friend of Hall's since he came to Charleston 10 years ago. "I don't know what he and that boy will do."

Dame Margaret, the famed British character actress who brought Agatha Christie's beloved Miss Marple to the screen, couldn't have been more pleased at the news.

Reached at her country cottage at Gerrards Cross, Buckinghamshire, she said happily: "We had three adoptive sons and an adoptive daughter, but now we have

Publicity Stunt Hinted

Schindler, who runs an antique shop, said Hall is a "great writer."

"This wedding may be part of a publicity stunt to sell more books," Schindler said. "He's certainly respected a whirlwind of the stuff (publicity) in England. I think he's doing it to make more money."

Miss Hall says the news has not been received so joyfully in Charleston's top society, in which Gordon Langley Hall the man once moved freely.

"The operation hasn't fazed them," she said, "but my proposed marriage has stunned the city."

The dark-haired, rather angular Miss Hall said her operation was performed at Johns Hopkins Hospital in Baltimore after she began to develop female characteristics.

tics. Hormone treatments completed the sex change, she said.

In Baltimore, a John Hopkins spokesman said in response to a query:

"Miss Hall was a patient. Miss Hall underwent surgery." He would not comment further.

Miss Hall said she and Simmons "are already married by common law," and had planned a ceremony Dec. 1 at a Negro Baptist church where his father is a deacon.

But they dropped that plan, she said, after threats that the church would be bombed. Instead, they will have an Anglican wedding in England, she said. Dame Margaret said in Buckinghamshire that she and her husband, actor Sir John Gielgud, would "do our best to attend."

Spanish Police

Zsa Zsa Claims Beating

LONDON (UPI) — Actress Zsa Zsa Gabor arrived in London Wednesday night wearing bandages and claiming she was "beaten up by five Spanish policemen."

Miss Gabor flew here from Palma de Mallorca, the Mediterranean island where she had been held over one day until she paid several thousand dollars in hotel and clothing bills. The hotel bill included a long congratulatory telegram to president-elect Richard Nixon.

Her wrists and legs swathed in bandages, Miss Gabor told reporters she "wouldn't spit on Spanish soil" after what she had gone through.

The Hungarian actress-television personality contended that the police who took her off a Paris-bound plane Tuesday "started beating me up. They broke my bones. They wouldn't tell me why."

The police hauled Miss Gabor before a magistrate early Tuesday after the managements of a hotel and boutique maintained she had failed to pay a $1,140 hotel bill and most of a $3,500 debt for custom-made clothes.

She was allowed to leave the Spanish Isle after arranging with a London bank to settle the accounts.

Mini-Skirt Exposure 'Insult'

LONDON (AP) — "It's obscene," said Rog Boucher about the mini-skirt. "I can't walk down the road or sit in a restaurant without seeing girls exposing themselves all the time." Boucher, 45, was brought into a magistrate's court Tuesday, accused of assaulting Jessie Watkins, 22, by touching her thigh and slapping her face, and of using offensive language.

Mrs. Watkins testified that she sat opposite Boucher in a commuter train. She said as she got up to leave he touched her thigh and called her a harlot.

"She screamed. He slapped her face. The police came. Boucher refused to plead guilty or not guilty. 'Let's get things in the right order — she insulted me,' he said. 'Why should they get away with it, exposing themselves like that?'"

The magistrate fined him the equivalent of $84. "I don't know what he was going on about," said Mrs. Watkins. "The dress was only three inches above the knee — nothing compared to what some girls wear."

Atom Arms For Mafia Possibility

OTTAWA (CP) — The Mafia, or some other well-financed, subversive group, could acquire the knowledge and possibly the atomic materials to make atomic weapons, the Senate Science committee learned Wednesday.

Dr. G. C. Laurence, president of the Atomic Energy Control Board, told the committee that governments are giving a great deal of consideration to safeguards against just such a possibility.

The point came out during questioning by Senator Paul Yuzik (PC-Manitoba) and Senator Allister Gromet (PC-Ontario) about the role of the board, which is chief regulatory and control agency over nuclear materials.

Senator Yuzik said he has the impression that with knowledge comparatively easily acquired and stolen materials a subversive group could build atom bombs and smuggle them into the country "to threaten our government and very way of life."

CONSIDERATION
Was such a possibility being considered so that preventive action could be taken against individuals, he asked Dr. Laurence.

"Yes, a great deal of consideration is being given to this," Dr. Laurence replied.

A purpose of the safeguards of such things as the international non-proliferation treaty was to make it as difficult as possible for nuclear materials to be diverted for such a purpose.

He said that to build a bomb "from scratch" would involve perhaps $100,000,000. This was not a great enough sum to prevent some organizations from making an attempt.

WASTE PRODUCT
Dr. Laurence said plutonium, a byproduct of nuclear power reactors now stored as a waste product, could be employed to make nuclear weapons.

He agreed with Senator Andrew Thompson (L-Ontario) that this applied to any country to which Canada provided fuel for a nuclear reactor. That was why Canada insisted on the buyer guaranteeing the nuclear material was to be used for peaceful purposes and allowing inspection by Canada or some international atomic agency.

Car Exhaust More Toxic Than Diesel

VANCOUVER (CP)—Exhaust gases from car engines are 60 times as toxic as those from diesel-powered buses, a spokesman for the British Columbia Hydro and Power Authority said Tuesday.

Frank Appelbe of Hydro's transit division said that while diesel fumes smell they are not as dangerous as those from a car exhaust.

He was commenting on Health Minister Ralph Lofmark's announcement last week that compulsory measures might have to be taken to curb diesel pollution.

Mr. Appelbe said B.C. Hydro has been ordering new diesel buses with special fuel injectors which help cut down pollution.

Riot Aftermath

Court Sets 14 Free

MONTREAL (CP) — Fourteen persons were freed and another 16 faced preliminary hearing Tuesday on charges of participating in a riot during the St. Jean Baptiste Day parade disturbances here June 24.

Seven other persons pleaded guilty to lesser charges of disturbing a public assembly and were each fined $50 and costs.

The 14 were freed when Crown prosecutor Germain Champagne said police could not identify them as being among those who participated in the disturbance.

Among the 16 whose preliminary hearing began was Pierre

Bourgeois, who was president of the separatist Rassemblement pour l'indépendance québécoise. The RIN recently disbanded and its members were urged to join Jean Lesage's separatist Parti Québécois.

High-ranking police officers testified that 500 to 600 separatist-inspired youths threw bottles, stones and other missiles at police after they were frustrated in their attempts to rush the parade's reviewing stand.

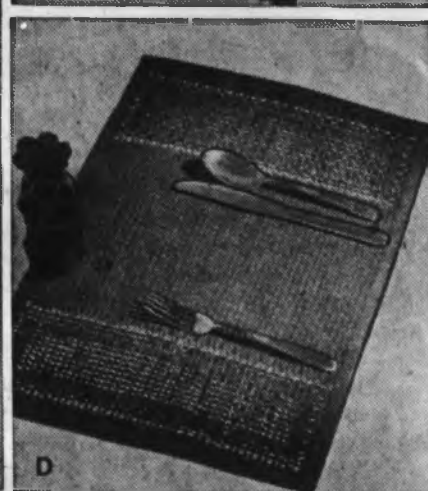

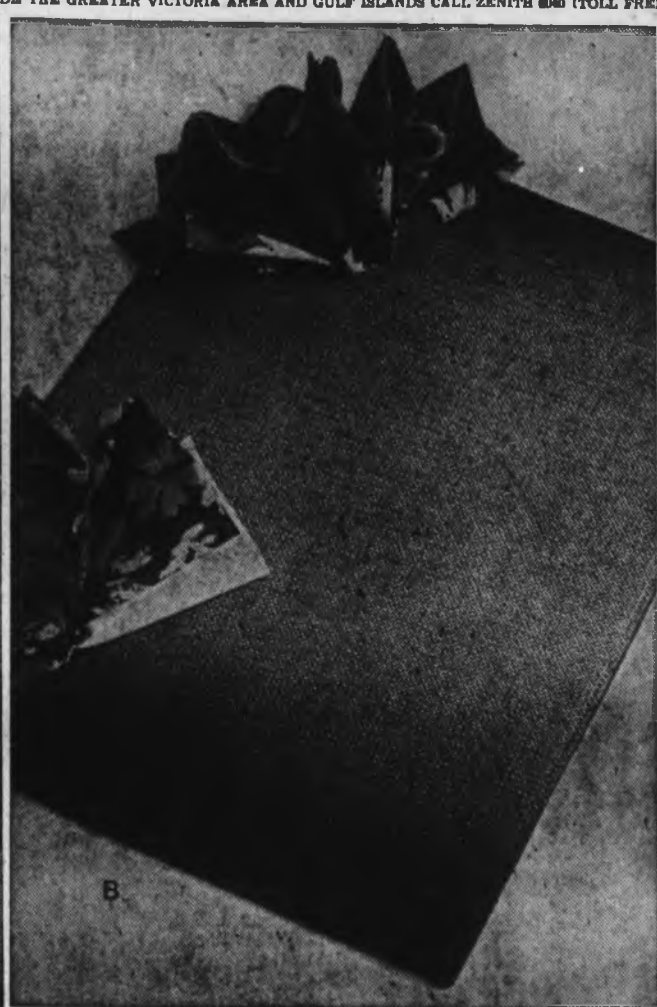

On the stand at the time were Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau, the late premier Daniel Johnson of Quebec, Montreal Mayor Jean Drapeau and other high-ranking officials.

Alderman Urges Regional Housing Planning

By DON GAIN

Ald. Edith Gunning of Saanich made an urgent plea Wednesday for over-all planning for the Greater Victoria region to take care of the 66,000 additional residents it will have in the next 15 years.

According to projections, the capital region will have a population of 251,000 by 1981, she said.

"How will they be housed? Will there be a well-thought-out pattern of development, with open spaces and an orderly pattern of growth?" she asked.

"How many families will be able to afford to buy a serviced lot, even within the next five years?"

These questions point up the need for over-all planning now, Mrs. Gunning said.

"We have to know the answers, and the time to get started on the planning is now."

Mrs. Gunning, who attended the Canadian Conference on Housing in Toronto last month, has made a report which Saanich council is studying.

As part of her report, she outlined implications of the conference's conclusions for the Greater Victoria region.

"The need for over-all planning in this region, with adequate provision of serviced land, is obvious," she said.

The Sourcebook on Housing in Canada shows that from 1960 to 1966 the increase in price of a serviced lot in metropolitan Victoria was 10.5 per cent. This compares with the next two highest increases in metropolitan areas — Windsor, 87.9 per cent and Hull, 68.6.

"I understand that much of the groundwork has already been done for the preparation of an over-all plan for the capital region," she said.

"Now that the regional board and the municipalities are moving forward on developing sewerage facilities, I believe that, through the Capital Region Planning Board, serious discussions should be promoted to decide on the main purposes of such

Hopes Fade

For 78

MANNINGTON, W. Va. (UPI) — Explosions and fires ravaged a four-mile stretch of a huge soft coal mine Wednesday, trapping 78 miners 700 feet underground. No contact was made with them and hopes for their survival faded.

Twenty-one other men escaped. Five were sent to hospital for treatment of shock.

The first and largest explosion at the Consolidation Coal Co.'s Mannington mine occurred at the Llewellyn portal about 5:30 a.m. EST, as the 99 men reported to be on duty were winding up the graveyard shift.

SMALLER BLASTS

Four more relatively smaller blasts followed during the morning hours, touching off fires that devoured seams of coal along four miles of the seven-mile-long main corridor.

Another explosion shook the mine shortly before 11 p.m. at the Mod's Run portal, where workmen had just completed sealing off ventilation in attempts to cut the flow of fresh air sustaining the fires. The workmen had evacuated the portal and none was injured.

Prior to that, mine officials said no rescue attempt could be made before Thursday morning at the earliest because of smoke, fire and the threat of further explosions.

CAUSE UNCERTAIN

There was no official word on the cause of the explosions, although it was suspected either methane gas or coal dust was to blame.

One of the survivors, Alva Davis, 29, of Wallace, W. Va., said later he heard the first explosions and "they were bad ones."

"It was a horrifying experience that I don't want to go through again," Davis said. "I thank God that I am out here and not back in there."

The mine is located in Northern West Virginia near the border with southwestern Pennsylvania and just 20 miles from Monongah, W. Va., where 361 men were killed by an explosion Dec. 6, 1907, in the nation's worst coal mine disaster.

Stamps Thump Riders

With their offensive unit riddled by injuries, the Calgary defensive team took charge Wednesday night to lead Stampede to a thrilling 25-12 overtime win over Saskatchewan Roughriders and into the Grey Cup final. Details on Page 14.

Spy Mission?

Venezuela Captures Cuba Ship

CARACAS (AP) — Two Venezuelan warships fired on a Cuban vessel fleeing in Venezuelan waters and captured the boat and its crew, Venezuela's armed forces chief said Wednesday.

Rear Admiral Jesus Carbonell Izquierdo said the Cuban ship Alacran was intercepted Tuesday night during a patrol designed to thwart landings of Havana-trained guerrillas in Venezuela.

Radio Caracas quoted President Raul Leoni as saying it was possible the Alacran was on a guerrilla landing mission, but Carbonell said the vessel "cannot be said to be a spy ship until she has been inspected thoroughly."

The incident took place near Los Testigos Keys, Venezuelan dependencies about 270 miles east of Caracas, and within territorial waters, the communiqué said.

Franc vs. Mark

Cash Crisis Parley Runs Into Deadlock

From Reuters-AP

FRANKFURT — A meeting of financial leaders from 10 leading industrial nations of the West broke up in apparent deadlock early today at the end of its first session.

Another session was scheduled for today to continue urgent discussion on monetary problems brought to crisis point by the weakness of the French franc and the strength of the West German mark.

A member of the West German delegation told reporters the problem is that countries whose currencies are weak have not said how they intend to contribute to international efforts to restore currency stability.

But the countries whose currencies have been under attack from speculators — Britain, France and the United States — have voiced the opinion that the West German mark should be revalued upward, he said.

It now looks as if the realization is beginning to spread that Bonn definitely has no intention of revaluing its currency to reduce a huge trade surplus which is one of the main causes of the current financial crisis, West German sources said.

One Swedish delegate told reporters: "There is something of a deadlock."

The attitude of the West German delegation is it is not West Germany but other countries that are in difficulties, informed sources said.

Most major money markets were shut to check speculators' attacks on the franc and rising pressure against the dollar and the pound in the second international monetary crisis of 1968.

Bullion marts in London and Zurich reflected a rush for gold. In most cases, holders

COLONIST 500 FUND

Christmas Difficult For Many

By DON COLLINS

The other day someone mentioned Christmas in a normal, happy tone and Frank greeted the comment with a pleasant smile.

It was not easy. The smile served as a mask for a brave man. In years gone by, Christmas had meant much joy for Frank and his family.

But that was before the crippling illness came. This year Frank will face Christmas in a wheelchair, stripped of the earning power of a once-good tradesman and painfully sensitive to the fact his wife has had to take on the role of family leader.

"No matter what happens, Christmas will be a difficult day for him to face," said a social worker.

Frank is a young man, and accepting his illness is that much more difficult.

His four children knew him as a good provider and they respect him. They do not want him hurt any more deeply, and they refuse to show the sadness that is in each of them as Christmas approaches. They do not expect presents this year, nor do they ask for any.

There are other children like Frank's in Greater Victoria. Too many others.

But there is something else in Greater Victoria that may take just a little of the emptiness out of Christmas for these unfortunate.

It is the Colonist 500 Fund.

This is the 12th consecutive year that the fund is attempting to spread a little happiness through households where happiness is missing. By Wednesday, $1,620 had been collected for that purpose.

Money donated by Colonist readers will be distributed to 500 families selected by the Christmas Bureau. The bureau is a Community Chest agency.

Last year more than $17,000 was contributed. Each family received $33.

Donations can be brought or mailed to the Colonist, 2631 Douglas. Downtown shoppers can take them to Avis-Rent-A-Car, 900 Douglas. Envelopes should bear the name of the fund.

The fund has proved popular because of two features: There are no pressure tactics and no administration costs. It is set up as an uncomplicated way of providing help at Christmas for people like Frank, his wife and their children—people facing a bleak Christmas through no fault of their own.

British House moves to weaken Lords, Page 9.

QUEBEC (CP) — The Quebec government Wednesday proposed legislation to abolish the legislative council and change the name of the legislative assembly to "the national assembly of the province of Quebec."

The Liberal Opposition welcomed the proposal to abolish the 101-year-old council, only provincial upper house in Canada.

The government bill for major legislative reform says:

"The legislature of the province of Quebec shall consist of the lieutenant-governor and the national assembly of the province of Quebec."

"It shall exercise all the powers vested in the legislature of the province of Quebec, consisting of the lieutenant-governor and two houses called the legislative council of Quebec and the legislative assembly of Quebec."

Opposition Leader Jean Lesage told reporters he approves the principle of the bill to abolish the upper house and leave a single elective chamber, the same structure as

Sheriff Needs Cash To Buy More Pot

PORT ORCHARD, Wash. (AP) — Sheriff Art Morken asked the county commissioners Wednesday to provide his office with $300 so he can buy "some pot."

He said his deputies had to continually dig into their own pockets for money to pay informers to make "buys" from people peddling marijuana, so they could be caught.

Manned Trip to Moon 'Risky, Silly, Wasteful'

LONDON (AP) — A leading British space expert said Wednesday night that on a scientific basis the plan by the United States to send three astronauts around the moon this Christmas is dangerous, silly and wasteful.

Sir Bernard Lovell, director of the Jodrell Bank Observatory, which has specialized in tracking moon shots, made the comment in a television interview with the BBC.

"On a scientific basis this project is wasteful and silly," Lovell said. "We've reached the stage with automatic landings when it's not necessary to risk human life to get information about the moon."

"Within a few years this information could be obtained by automatic, unmanned instruments."

Lovell said "the worst hazards" of the Christmas flight already have been pointed out by the U.S. National Aeronautics and Space Administration. Lovell listed these as:

"When the astronauts eject from lunar orbit they might not be able to return to earth because of engine failure."

"There is a risk of radiation from the sun."

"When they do return to earth the very high speed of re-entry much higher than on previous flights, must be dangerous."

Crisis: Germans Blameless

By ELMER W. LAMMI, from Washington

President Johnson, submitting a "sobering report" on the nation's water resources, has urged Congress to give top priority to solving the problems of drought, floods and water pollution.

"A nation that fails to plan intelligently for the development and protection of its precious waters will be condemned to wither because of its shortsightedness," Johnson said. "The hard lessons of history are clear, written on the deserts and ruins of once proud civilizations."

The president's warning was expressed in a letter forwarding to Congress a report on water problems facing the country in the next 50 years. Johnson said ample supplies of water to support a growing population and an expanding economy could not be taken for granted.

He saw "stark warnings" in pollution destroying the nation's rivers, the recent drought in the Northwest and the "nightmare of ravaging floods well-hoarded over too many American communities."

The report, noting that expected use of water in America by 2020 would exceed natural runoff, said Alaska was seen as having perhaps the fewest water problems. Other areas not considered critical included the Pacific Northwest, Tennessee, Hawaii and Puerto Rico.

The Lower Mississippi region was viewed as "water rich" and a strategic area for future development because of the heavy flow of the Mississippi River.

In California, the report said, enough water could be provided by transfer from the North to the populous South. But desalting and waste water reclamation might prove to be cheaper in the long run, the report suggested.

Areas with particularly severe problems included the Lower Colorado River basin—chiefly in Arizona—and the Rio Grande area of New Mexico and Texas.

In Arizona, the report said, the dependable water supply already was inadequate to meet needs. In the Rio Grande area, it said, projected economic growth could not be maintained unless water problems are solved.

In the Great Lakes region, increased water use would add to the serious pollution problems already plaguing Lakes Michigan, Erie and Ontario, the report said.

Recommendations made by council included:

- More comprehensive river basin planning with increased attention to national goals for balancing population and economic growth.
- Cooperation among local, state and federal authorities.

ties in the planning of water supply projects in metropolitan areas.

• Tighter control of pollution by industry, including the discharge of cooling water by steam-generated power plants.

• A study to determine whether state and federal legislation is needed to set aside future reservoir sites.

• More study of the impact of water resource development on public health.

• Consideration of water transfers between river basins as a way to alleviate water shortages.

By HAROLD MORRISON
From London

Europe's currency crisis is essentially a German-French quarrel over frugality and extravagance. But it also shows the weakness of the non-Communist world's monetary system. The system was launched into that dreamy period of

reasonable and orderly way. Stabilized currencies was the aim of the International Monetary Fund and in most cases the fund achieved its goals.

But occasionally the system broke down, especially when strong-willed leaders refused to bow to the judgment of the marketplace.

economic strength by living modestly at home while developing big export markets through products the world wants.

The result is a huge surplus of exports over imports and an overflowing treasury of foreign currencies and gold.

France, next door, also built up a big treasury but President de Gaulle tried to use it as a currency weapon against his old allies. At the same time his people riled against austerity and demanded a bigger share of the gilded calf.

When de Gaulle finally agreed, the economic storm broke. Business leaders, economists, investors and the ordinary men of the street soon concluded their money was being weakened through uncontrolled inflation.

The West German mark looked a lot safer. In the rush to ditch francs and trade them for marks, a roaring sea of international currencies flowed into West Germany in a frenzied exchange for marks.

It appeared reasonable, in the judgment of the marketplace, that the mark was worth a lot more than its current price—and the franc a lot less.

But neither West Germany nor France would budge on changing their currency prices.

For de Gaulle a devalued franc would be a great blow to his prestige, especially after his government said it would not be cut.

For the West Germans a currency markup might mean the loss of their export markets.

It decided a temporary duty changes, to make West German goods slightly more expensive for the foreign buyer and foreign goods a bit cheaper for West German consumers. That might encourage more imports and discourage more exports.

But that didn't satisfy speculators who figured the mark was still worth more. The flow of foreign currency kept coming, forcing an emergency meeting of finance ministers of the world's 10 leading countries in Bonn.

The upshot may finally be a European currency realignment or some extensive belt-tightening in France combined with pledges of massive foreign loans.

But for this West Germany is not to be blamed. It had kept its economic house in order. It argued with reason that its neighbors should try to do the same.

Will Canada Fill 'Vacant Chair?'

By FRANCIS B. KENT
From Rio de Janeiro

A high-level Canadian mission completed talks with Brazilian officials this week and headed into the final days of Latin American discussions that are expected to bring a significant shift in Canada's foreign policy.

Mitchell Sharp, Canada's secretary of state for external affairs, who headed the delegation, called it "the largest and most representative official mission ever to leave Canada for any purpose."

The group is holding talks in nine Latin American nations on a tour which began Oct. 27 and ends Nov. 27.

Its goal, as outlined by Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau last month in Ottawa, is to demonstrate Canada's changing attitude toward Latin America, which Canada has all but ignored in the past.

One possible outcome of the talks is Canadian application for membership in the Organization of American States.

No promises have been made on this score and none can be expected until the mission arrives back in Ottawa, Nov. 27. At that time, according to Canadian sources here, Prime Minister Trudeau presumably will make known his intentions.

If he should choose to apply, the move would eliminate the "vacant chair" set aside for Canada 20 years ago when the United States and the Latin American republics formed the Organization of American States.

Regardless of Trudeau's decision on that question, the mission now in Latin America will surely bring about far-reaching changes in Canadian-Latin American relations.

"The importance of the mission," Sharp told a press conference here, "may be measured by the fact that altogether five ministers are engaged in it, assisted by a very large group of senior officials drawn from departments and agencies which have responsibilities in the three main spheres of the mission's interest—political, economic and cultural."

Starting in Venezuela, the group has already met with leading officials in Colombia, Peru, Chile, Argentina and Brazil. Next comes Mexico, followed by Guatemala and Costa Rica.

No joint statements have been issued by the governments involved and no trade agreements have been signed at this point, a Canadian embassy official here said.

At the very least, the discussions are expected to result in a significant increase in the volume of commerce between Canada and Latin America. Trudeau himself has gone on record with statements that Canada must turn away from Europe and look to its own hemisphere.

This attitude was reflected in a statement attributed to John Green, the minister of mines and energy and a member of the mission.

"Just because our grandfathers and their fathers came from Britain or France," he was quoted as saying, "does not mean that we must continue to pay more attention to the old continent and the Commonwealth."

Rivals Manoeuvre For Nasser Throne

By LEO HEIMAN
From Jerusalem

Egypt's President Nasser, still a hero to 110,000,000 Arabs throughout the Middle East, is suffering from diabetes, a weak heart and clogging of vital arteries.

This is the gist of a confidential medical report leaked by reliable diplomatic sources who say the struggle for succession in Cairo already has begun.

As evaluated by Israeli experts on Arab affairs, Western intelligence analysts and neutral diplomats, the key men who are competing for the Kremlin's approval as Nasser's heir apparent are:

• Gen. Mohammed Fawzi, former chief of general staff in the Israeli-Arab war of June, 1967, and now the minister of defense and supreme commander of the Egyptian armed forces.

The 53-year-old general has recently cemented his position by replacing Nasser as chief negotiator in talks conducted in Cairo with a top-level Soviet military mission.

• Fawzi's chief rival in the war of succession is Gen. Abdel Moneim Riad, 59, the current chief of general staff.

General Fawzi

Riad commanded the unified Egyptian-Jordanian forces on the Jerusalem battlefield in the 1967 war and is described by the Israelis as the best Arab commander since the Crusades.

• Moscow's man in Cairo appears to be 47-year-old Amin Howeldy, who is Nasser's minister of state in charge of intelligence, security and police.

• Sharawi Juma'a, 44, another former Communist with known Kremlin connections, is the minister of the Interior in President Nasser's cabinet.

• Dr. Mahmoud Fawzi, 55, Egypt's foreign minister and President Nasser's adviser on international affairs. His name has been repeatedly mentioned as the prime minister of a caretaker government in the event of Nasser's death or resignation.

The Russians regard him as a "Westerner" and do not trust him. He is disliked by the generals and police chiefs, but enjoys Nasser's backing and general respect.

• Sa'ad Shafat, 39, the chief of Nasser's inner cabinet, is the youngest of the six contestants and almost unknown outside Egypt.

A graduate of a Russian military school, his political sympathies are unknown, but despite his relatively junior rank (colonel), even generals salute him first.

Veteran observers say many surprises are still possible in Cairo but the final contest will be decided between Juma'a and Howeldy, the only two men whom the Kremlin trust and will support after Nasser fades away.

UN Surveys World Tragedies

Thousand Suicides a Day

By EARL T. FOELL, from United Nations

At least 1,000 people commit suicide throughout the world on an average day.

A new World Health Organization study seeks to analyze these tragedies, and from that analysis to suggest ways for communities to cut back the total.

The WHO survey shows that:

• In industrialized countries physicians, dentists, and lawyers are likely to have higher suicide rates than other professionals.

• Men are still far more likely to attempt suicide than women, but the rates for females show a tendency to rise in many countries keeping statistics, while the male rate is declining.

• The age group with the highest rate continues to be the over-65 group. But countries with efficient, large-scale social welfare and medical services for the aged apparently have a better chance of reducing that rate.

• There is accumulating, though inconclusive, evidence that the suicide rate among younger aged groups is rising in parts of the world where statistical studies are made. In a few industrial countries a secondary age peak, lower than that of the over-65 group, occurs in the 15-to-24 age group, where, because of lower death rates, from other causes, suicide may become a common cause of death.

• Migrants, the ethnically isolated, alcoholics, mental cases (especially maniac-depressives), persons from broken homes lead the list of suicides from more specific causes.

• There is a higher rate of suicides in the poorer, "third world" countries than had previously been suspected. But, despite incomplete findings, the incidents in those African, Asian, and Latin American countries is not expected to match that of European and North American countries, where suicide ranks among the first five to 10 causes of death in recent years.

• For every complete suicide there are from eight to 10 unsuccessful attempts. This points to a world figure of perhaps 5,000,000 attempts per year.

• Statistical trends differ markedly in different countries—even those with similar climate, working conditions and income. For instance, suicides among males dropped sharply (nine-to-27 per cent) in the period 1952-1963 in Switzerland, Denmark, Japan and Sweden. During the same period in Scotland, Canada and Austria they rose even more sharply (23 to 42 per cent).

No explanation is given for the finding that doctors, dentists and attorneys have relatively higher suicide rates than other professionals in industrialized land. But a quotation from the British Medical Journal shows one in 150 medical doctors in England and Wales takes his own life.

In a five-year period, 6 per cent of all deaths of physicians there under the age of 65 were from suicide. The same report mentions high suicide rates among doctors in Denmark, Italy and the United States.

Society Formed to Shelter Youth in Need

By ARNOLD OLSON

NANAIMO—The first step toward a receiving home for the Nanaimo area was made Wednesday afternoon when Nanaimo Youth Services Society was formed.

The constitution was adopted and officers elected: John Noble, Brannan Lake Boys School superintendent, chairman; vice-chairmen, Father Leo Robert and Lorn Verigin; secretary, Mrs. Sylvia Fredricksen, and treasurer, Bob Koster.

The society's first project will be to establish receiving home to provide immediate emergency housing for any youth—children who are lost, have run away from home, whose parents (due to illness or accident) cannot care for them, and wards of the court. They all will find food and shelter.

Mr. Noble said the society would contact municipal and provincial governments for co-operation in setting up the home.

Locally, the Lion's Club, Family and Children's Court Committee and other organizations are ready to back the society.

Mr. Noble said, "The home will depend upon the need and public response."

He said the society still has a lot of study to do before deciding if the home will be for boys or girls.

"It could be for one, or both. It all depends upon what is needed most," he said.

He said the home may not be the only project the society will sponsor.

"The way is open for future developments as far as our constitution is concerned. It's up to the directors and officers to decide," he said.

"Right now the home is the primary project and we're hoping to involve local young people in it too."

As he left for an appointment as guest speaker to Nanaimo senior high school girls, he added, "The girls might just be interested in this too, it's up to them."

Pledge Worthless

High Hopes For Successor

By MARY TAYLOR

PORT ALBERNI — MLA Howard McDiarmid said he's pleased Indian Affairs Minister Jean Chretien will visit the proposed National Marine Park area near Tofino on Monday.

The announcement that Mr. Chretien will go to Tofino was made by MP Richard Durance.

Mr. Durance will accompany the minister and they expect to arrive in Tofino either late Sunday evening or early Monday morning. Mr. Durance said he had asked Dr. McDiarmid to arrange a trip over the proposed park site.

Dr. McDiarmid said he had first-hand knowledge of the area involved which former Indian Affairs Minister Arthur Laing promised would become a national park almost three years ago.

At that time Mr. Laing promised that the government would act "with the speed of light" to complete the agreement with the province.

"I congratulate Mr. Durance on behalf of the people of this area who feel this natural beauty spot should have federal park status," said Dr. McDiarmid.

"Numerous attempts were made to have Mr. Laing visit the site without success. It is laudable that Mr. Chretien finds the time despite his new and growing cabinet responsibilities."

"This is the policy our cabinet ministers here in B.C. have adopted. It is the spirit of the times for those in authority to get out and see as much as possible for themselves on the spot."

'Nothing But Good'

"I am just delighted that Mr. Durance has been able to have Mr. Chretien include this visit on his itinerary. Nothing but good can come of it."

Referring to Mr. Durance's concern that portions of the designated area might have fallen into private hands and that initial costs of acquiring the area might have risen, Dr. McDiarmid said, "The provincial government has no way of putting a freeze on the sale of privately-owned property."

"Indeed to do so would be unfair since no definite commitment on its later purchase for a park could be made at this time. I hope Mr. Chretien will be able to make it possible to act at once before the going market price puts it out of reach. This area is coming more and more into its own, and is being recognized as a unique and valuable waterfront."

"However, I am sure that any of the Crown land involved has been recognized by the government as a valuable asset and I do not believe it would be released for other use until the decision on the park is made."

Fluoridation Vote Dec. 7

COURTENAY — Fluoridation of the water supply in the Comox-Strathcona regional district, which has been discussed by residents, will be put to a vote.

A referendum will be held Dec. 7. The vote in the area outside Courtenay and Comox will be conducted by the school board.

Fluoride Piped To Town

Checking feed line of Gold River pumping station where fluoride enters town's water supply is Larry Bonache, now superintendent of works. Program has just started at station, below town of 2,700 near the Gold River's banks. However water is not drawn from river, but from artesian well. —(Betty Macmillan)

Works Bylaw Mooted

By KLAUS MUEHNER

NORTH COWICHAN — Council next year will study the feasibility of a public works bylaw to bring public works projects up to standards.

Ald. George Whitaker, making the proposal at Wednesday a afternoon's council meeting, said rather than raising the mill rate each year without great visible results, the bylaw would give the municipality a chance to "catch up with projects that should be done."

He said the suggested bylaw should be for $1,000,000 or $1,500,000. Mayor Donald Morton noted it there are merits to the proposed bylaw council would consider the proposal.

RECREATION BYLAW

Two opponents of the bylaw were Ald. Gerry Smith and Ald. Tom Burge. The former warned, "We still have the recreation bylaw coming up and then another one of $1,000,000 or even $1,500,000."

"The taxpayers will only stand for so much," he said. Rebuttal came during last year's municipal election campaign had been told a debt from a similar program would be paid off this year.

WOULD BE UNFAIR

Ald. Burge stressed it would be unfair to state the municipality is behind in its public works program. "I think we gain a bit every year and I am in favor of paying as we go along."

The proposed 1969 public works budget amounts to $476,375, but it is subject to revisions.

FORESTRY PROGRAM

Other proposed expenditures for next year which also may be altered in the process of preparing the 1969 budget are: $3,700, forestry program; $45,000 equipment list; $10,000 utilities and $64,000 recreation.

Ald. Dennis Hogan told council the municipality's financial obligation to the local branch of the SPCA will be $8,000 next year.

The sum includes 50 cents per capita plus 20 per cent of collected license fees. The city of Duncan will have to contribute $2,000.

CHIEF IN $5,000

Council agreed in principle to chip in to the tune of $5,000 if necessary for the acquisition of additional land for the Cowichan Valley Forest Museum.

Total cost of the strip of land, which also would give good access to museum property, was limited as being about $18,500.

Mayor Morton said the museum society hopes half of that amount would be shared between the municipality and the city of Duncan.

The city's share would be about $3,000.

Fisherman Missing

NANAIMO—Lawrence Smith, who left the Nanaimo area three weeks ago aboard the gillnetter Bird, is still missing.

A search and rescue spokesman in Vancouver said the case has been turned over to the RCMP missing persons section.

'Fair to Both Sides'

Teachers' Pact Ratified

NANAIMO — School board Wednesday night ratified a 5.7 per cent teachers' wage increase for 1969.

The increase, affecting 443 teachers, will mean an additional $200,000 on the 1968 salary budget of $3,500,000, an increase of 1.8 mills.

The salary increases were greater for teachers in lower wage brackets.

"We are pleased that we avoided arbitration and that our negotiations with teachers were resolved at the local level," trustee Gordon McGilley, negotiating committee chairman, said.

FAIR TO ALL

"I think the settlement was fair to all concerned," William McKay, who headed the teachers' negotiating committee, said "While the salary increase was below that which the teachers feel the present economic conditions warrant, they recognize the difficult position in which the school board finds itself under the new school financial formula."

The percentage increase is parallel to neighboring school boards but Nanaimo area teachers, on a higher scale, receive $25 more annually. In other school board business: Five school board trustees, whose terms end shortly, will run again in the Dec. 7 elections.

They are Mrs. Margaret Fuller, Mrs. Margaret Warwick, Mrs. David Maynard, Doug McKenzie and Gordon McGilley.

New Track Planned For Racers

COURTENAY — The Oyster River racing association has announced plans to build a $40,000 stock car racing track at the corner of the Island Highway and McCaulay Road.

The new, three-eighths mile paved oval track will be situated on 20 acres. Plans include lights for night operation, concession stands, restroom facilities and bleachers to seat approximately 2,000 spectators.

To finance the track, the association will sell debentures at $100 each with an expected return of eight per cent per annum. Construction will begin soon and the club expects the track to be ready by May.

Horse Lovers Create Vast Change

DUNCAN—Queen Margaret's School, Duncan, has started using its indoor riding arena.

Miss Shirley Burr, a qualified British horse society instructor said, "I have been here for the past eight years and have seen vast changes. Classes have multiplied, and the horse business is absolutely booming."

"When I first started I had 38 students from the school and 10 locals per week. Now I have 85 students from the school and 60 locals."

"There was one field, one stable and one field we rented. We had nine horses."

"Now we have all our own equipment, 15 acres, stables for 30 horses and a 175 by 60 foot indoor riding arena."

Miss Burr said the reason the indoor arena was built is that the surrounding area had become so built up the students could not get out and trailride.

It came to a point where they had to either give up or go into it further so the arena is the result—they decided to go further.

The school participates in competitions between other schools on the island.

"Now we can train all year round."

"We have ideal conditions and we can go outside when it suits us. In the past we had tremendous cancellations of lessons because of it being wet."

The condition of the horses and the quality of instruction has improved immensely, and so has the standard of riding.

'My Mom Goes to High School' Her Children's Novel Boast

By BETTY MACMILLAN

GOLD RIVER — The Gold River high school has commenced its new open door policy for adult day students. School principal T. G. Ellwood, who is also director of adult education, said he was delighted with the response. Nine adults enrolled, which he thinks is pretty significant in a community of this size. The result was that 21 Grade 11 and 12 courses were offered to adults, giving them the choice of one or two courses or a full program.

Mr. Ellwood believes that the presence of adults in the school has a beneficial effect on students. "People they know in the community coming back to school, gives them an appreciation of how important it is to get along with their work."

Mr. Ellwood also says it sharpens the teacher with an adult in the class. "A teacher cannot afford to give a poor lesson."

Mrs. I. R. Smith, who has several adults in her English 12 course, said "Their serious attitude could have a beneficial effect on the students. They create a good learning atmosphere."

Most of the adults attending day school are men. There is one woman, Mrs. Carol Jensen, who is taking four subjects. Mrs. Jensen has three children, aged 8, 7 and 3 months, and says that her husband is very pleased that she has returned to school.

Her main reason for continuing her education is for self-satisfaction. However, she said, "Seven years after leaving school, I began to see the folly of quitting before Grade 12. When looking for a job, I found that although I had a considerable amount of experience, employers now want someone with a minimum of Grade 12."

"I tried to finish Grade 12 by correspondence," said Mrs. Jensen, "but it was not satisfactory. This is a golden opportunity. Now if I have a problem the teacher is right there."

With reference to her fellow students Mrs. Jensen said, "The kids are pretty good, it sort of bothered me at first and I was a bit embarrassed. I do not find it difficult to concentrate with any slight disturbance. I get rather annoyed quickly."

Mrs. Jensen, who is also treasurer of the Gold River Church Guild, said her own children think it is a novelty to say "My mother goes to high school."

UVic's New President

Launching-Pad Atmosphere Attracts U.S. Educator to Rising Challenge

By BILL STAVDAL

The University of Victoria's new president-elect said Tuesday he accepted the appointment because the campus is about to "take off" in new academic developments.

Dr. Bruce J. Partridge, 42, vice-president of Johns Hopkins University in Baltimore, was chosen Monday night by the University of Victoria board of governors.

He takes office next July 1. The appointment of Dr. Partridge ends a nine-month international search that began with the resignation of Dr. Malcolm Taylor on Feb. 20. Dr. Taylor had been president for four of the five years of the campus' history as a university.

Dr. Partridge comes from a 32-year-old university famous for its school of medicine. He has been vice-president since 1964.

"The University of Victoria has some unique opportunities in education," he told a Tuesday morning press conference.

"It's at a stage where it can be a viable institution. It's at a stage in its history where it's about to take off and do some outstanding things educationally."

Dr. Partridge said he was impressed by the way the university set out to find a president. The 18-member committee was composed of representatives from undergraduate and graduate students, faculty, alumni, senate and board of governors.

"This is really quite unusual," he said. "Every time I looked a little further, I found more that interested me."

One thing, he admitted, was the accessibility of sailing. It is a sport he enjoys on the waters of Chesapeake Bay.

Dr. Partridge said he regarded the development of the Victoria faculty as his prime task.

"This is the crux of strengthening a university," he said.

Another major role for the president, he said, is shaping the university's "style."

"The University of Victoria is at a stage where it needs to find a style and objectives for the long-term future," he said.

Students have a major role to play in university life, said Dr. Partridge.

"Students are a very important part of the university community."

"There are some things a board of governors can do better than faculty and students. There are some things that only students can do."

The president-elect said the university's new college system was one of the things which attracted him.

"It will help to avoid the 'multiversity' impersonality which destroys us in society," he said.

Dr. Partridge's background includes nuclear physics, international law and business law. He holds a doctorate in jurisprudence from the Blackstone College of Law in Chicago.

He has travelled widely in connection with Johns Hopkins research activities abroad. Thailand, Formosa, Japan and India are countries where he has contacts.

Dr. Partridge also has lectured in business law and techniques of management. This year he became co-author of the book College and University Business Administration.

The president-elect is married and has four children, two sons and two daughters, ranging in age from 14 to 19.

Chancellor R. B. Wilson, chairman of the presidential selection advisory committee, said it was an "overwhelming recommendation" that led to Dr. Partridge's appointment.

"He has an ideal blend of ability, youth and wide experience in university government," said Chancellor Wilson.

Dean Robert Wallace will continue as acting president until Dr. Partridge takes over next summer.

Dr. Partridge will make several familiarization visits to the campus in the interim.

Salesmen Oppose Rate Cut

By BILL THOMAS

A proposal by agent members of the Victoria Real Estate Board to cut salesmen's share of commissions is getting organized opposition among the salesmen.

The Real Estate Board's 83 members will meet Thursday morning to discuss and vote on a change in the board's constitution which would cut salesmen's commissions to a flat 50 per cent of the total. The current rate is about a 70 per cent split in favor of the salesmen.

President of the board, D. G. Peaker, said Tuesday the alteration in the commission split would not apply to salesmen with existing contracts.

"STABILITY" The ruling, which would require a 60-per-cent majority of agents, would cut commissions to new salesmen and to salesmen who switch their jobs.

A spokesman for the salesmen said the agents had suggested the move would bring stability to the industry and protect the public, but he said this "is just pure unadulterated hogwash. The agents just want more money, pure and simple. They are getting greedy."

"This means that if the rules are changed, then the agents can call in their sales staff and say to them that they are not needed any longer and fire them. Mind, you, they will probably invite them to stay on at the cut rate."

School Day Cut Short

Weary Little Ones Will Leave Early

DUNCAN — Grade 1 students in the Cowichan school district will be dismissed from school at 2:30 p.m. until Easter.

The practice was to dismiss the students at 2:30 until the end of October and then they would leave school at the regular time as other students.

District school superintendent Eric Lewis said, "The Grade 1 students are too tired and it would be better left until Easter."

In other business:

A 15-passenger van will be purchased on a lease basis to transport students to and from the Arcadian school.

The monthly tax bill is $425 and the van can be rented for approximately $275, including a driver and maintenance.

SHAWNIGAN LAKE — Fisherman George Miller, 70, was fined $75 in magistrate's court Wednesday.

Mr. Miller, of Mill Bay, was picked up by the federal fisheries department on Nov. 7 in the Spanish Inlet and charged with possessing three endangered spring grillice (under 12 inches).

Magistrate James Roberts was told the accused has been previously convicted for the same offence, and fined him $25 a fish.

CAMPBELL RIVER — A new generating unit at Strathcona generating station has increased the plant's capacity by 33,750 kilowatts.

The addition doubles the power of the plant which has been operating since 1938 with one generating unit.

The Strathcona development includes an earthfill dam, 170 feet high and 1,800 feet wide, across the northern end of Upper Campbell Lake. The reservoir created by the dam is 30 miles long and three-quarters of a mile wide and stores 620,000 acre-feet of water.

COURTENAY — Delegates representing clubs and organizations have voted in favor of proceeding with construction of an indoor swimming pool.

They urged that Comox-Strathcona declare in District 71 have a money bylaw on the project placed before them as soon as possible.

DUNCAN — Building permits issued from city hall dropped from $12,000 during October 1967, to $6,700 during the same period this year. Ten-month total last year was $1,020,330, and this year it is $566,675.

DUNCAN — Neil Dornier was remanded to Dec. 10 for a pre-sentence report when he appeared in Duncan court Tuesday on a charge of gross indecency.

A second charge of indecency

Ld. was more than 50,000 tons, exceeding its previous record by 3,000 tons.

Biggest contributor was the kraft mill where the record for one day's production was 1,328 tons. It had a monthly production of 36,063 tons.

Production in the sawmill was up to 9,102 mbm, 1,617 mbm more than the record set in September. The planer mill production was 8,348 mbm, topping a record set in January, 1963.

MANAIMO — A contract for widening the George Pearson Bridge, and providing access was awarded to Vancouver Pile Driving and Contracting Ltd. in Victoria.

There has been traffic congestion on the bridge at peak traffic periods for almost a decade. It has caused numerous letters from city council to the highways department.

The approaches will incorporate a wedge of land on the west side of Terminal Avenue, from Comox Road to Campbell Street.

CAMPBELL RIVER — James Haight, 27, of unit 4, 394 Oshar, was killed when the car in which he was travelling went off the road at night and plunged into a five-foot deep ditch. Other occupants of the car, travelling towards Campbell River about 15 miles out on the Gold River Road, Kenneth Green, received minor injuries.

DUNCAN — The second phase of the Lake Cowichan Highway project was started Monday.

Jervis Inlet Construction Co. of Vancouver started clearing on Hard Road about three miles north of Duncan.

Work involves levelling and laying gravel. Heavy earth-moving equipment was recently brought in by rail for that part of the project. It is estimated the work will take eight months.

FARNSVILLE — The regular monthly meeting of Farnsville Ratepayers' Association will be combined with a social evening at the Legion hall on Friday at 8 p.m. Members are asked to bring guests and anyone interested is welcome to attend.

'Treat Garbage, Sewage Like 2,000 Years Ago'

NANAIMO — Ald. Mega McDougall is the last of the three incumbents to announce she is seeking her third term on council.

Ald. Gordon MacKay and Bill Hunter said last week that they would run for re-election in the Dec. 7 elections.

John Hancock, who has contested a seat on council three times unsuccessfully, will try again. "I feel that after almost a year on the recreation commission that I can definitely say this whole area needs much more development in recreational facilities," he said.

Actually serving on the commission had given him a deeper insight into the area's needs and has given some concrete ideas on how recreation could be improved, he said.

"And the whole of Nanaimo area needs amalgamation and planning," he added. Both in future weeks and if he should get elected, on council, he would strive for better inter-area co-operation. He said another need is for better sewage and garbage disposal.

"It's appalling that in today's world we still treat garbage and sewage as we did 2,000 years ago. I'm delighted that the government is doing something about dumping raw sewage into waterways," he concluded.

Alderman Urges Regional Housing Planning

By DON GAIN

Ald. Edith Gunning of Saanich made an urgent plea Wednesday for over-all planning for the Greater Victoria region to take care of the 66,000 additional residents it will have in the next 13 years.

According to projections, the capital region will have a population of 251,000 by 1981, she said.

"How will they be housed? Will there be a well-thought-out pattern of development, with open spaces and an orderly pattern of growth?" she asked.

"How many families will be able to afford to buy a serviced lot, even within the next five years?"

These questions point up the need for over-all planning now, Mrs. Gunning said.

"We have to know the answers, and the time to get started on the planning is now."

Mrs. Gunning, who attended the Canadian Conference on Housing in Toronto last month, has made a report which Saanich council is studying.

As part of her report, she outlined implications of the conference's conclusions for the Greater Victoria region.

"The need for over-all planning in this region, with adequate provision of serviced land, is obvious," she said.

The Sourcebook on Housing in Canada shows that from 1960 to 1966 the increase in price of a serviced lot in metropolitan Victoria was 101.6 per cent. This compares with the next two highest increases in metropolitan areas — Windsor, 87.9 per cent and Hull, 68.6.

"I understand that much of the groundwork has already been done for the preparation of an over-all plan for the capital region," she said.

"Now that the regional board and the municipalities are moving forward on developing sewerage facilities, I believe that, through the Capital Region Planning Board, serious discussions should be promoted to decide on the main purposes of such

HOPES FADE FOR 78

MANNINGTON, W. Va. (UPI) — Explosions and fires ravaged a four-mile stretch of a huge soft coal mine Wednesday, trapping 78 miners 700 feet underground. No contact was made with them and hopes for their survival faded.

Twenty-one other men escaped. Five were sent to hospital for treatment of shock.

The first and largest explosion at the Consolidation Coal Co.'s Mannington mine occurred at the Llewellyn portal about 5:30 a.m. EST. as the 99 men reported to be on duty were winding up the graveyard shift.

SMALLER BLASTS

Four more relatively smaller blasts followed during the morning hours, touching off fires that devoured seams of coal along four miles of the seven-mile-long main corridor.

Another explosion shook the mine shortly before 11 p.m. at the Mod's Run portal, where workers had just completed sealing off ventilation in attempts to cut the flow of fresh air sustaining the fires. The workers had evacuated the portal and none was injured.

Prior to that, mine officials said no rescue attempt could be made before Thursday morning at the earliest because of smoke, fire and the threat of further explosions.

CAUSE UNCERTAIN

There was no official word on the cause of the explosions, although it was suspected either methane gas or coal dust was to blame.

One of the survivors, Alva Davis, 29, of Wallace, W. Va., said later he heard the first explosions and "they were bad ones."

"It was a horrifying experience that I don't want to go through again," Davis said. "I thank God that I am out here and not back in there."

The mine is located in Northern West Virginia near the border with southwestern Pennsylvania and just 20 miles from Monongah, W. Va., where 361 men were killed by an explosion Dec. 6, 1907, in the nation's worst coal mine disaster.

Stamps Thump Riders

With their offensive unit riddled by injuries, the Calgary defensive team took charge Wednesday night to lead Stampede to a thrilling 25-12 overtime win over Saskatchewan Roughriders and into the Grey Cup final. Details on Page 14.

Hydrofoil Ripped, Five Hurt

SEATTLE (AP) — Five persons were injured when the hydrofoil Victoria slammed into an unidentified underwater object Wednesday, causing $250,000 damage to the 65-foot vessel.

None of the injuries appeared too serious, although one passenger, Miss Charlene Hardman of Burton, Wash., was taken to hospital for observation. She was thrown against a bulkhead.

The accident occurred off Port Townsend, Wash., when the vessel was southbound from Victoria to Seattle at about 30 knots. One crewman said the impact was "like hitting a brick wall."

A strut was sheared off and the entire port foil, which helps support the craft when it rises from the surface, was ripped away in the collision.

William Niedermair, president of Northwest Hydrofoil Lines, gave the damage estimate, and said the Victoria will enter a shipyard here for repairs today. The vessel was carrying 21 passengers and three crew members. The injured included Mrs. Hertha Schreiner of Tonsberg, Norway, who suffered a knee injury, R. W. Lachman Sr. of Seattle, wrenched leg, Mrs. Buddy Rains of Seattle, cut knee, and stewardess Jan Hawley, a possible wrist fracture.

"It was pretty bad," Miss Hawley said. "I flew almost 10 feet and was knocked out for a second."

Erling Beck, captain of the Victoria, said he was not sure what the craft hit. The weather was clear and sea conditions good, he said.

The Victoria, which has been in regular service between Seattle and Victoria since May, made it here under her own power but was four hours late.

early today at the end of its first session.

Another session was scheduled for today to continue urgent discussion on monetary problems brought to crisis point by the weakness of the French franc and the strength of the West German mark.

A member of the West German delegation told reporters the problem is that countries whose currencies are weak have not said how they intend to contribute to international efforts to restore currency stability.

But the countries whose currencies have been under attack from speculators — Britain, France and the United States — have voiced the opinion that the West German mark should be revalued upward, he said.

It now looks as if the realization is beginning to spread that Bonn definitely has no intention of revaluing its currency to reduce a huge trade surplus which is one of the main causes of the current financial crisis, West German sources said.

One Swedish delegate told reporters: "There is something of a deadlock."

The attitude of the West German delegation is it is not West Germany but other countries that are in difficulties, informed sources said.

Most major money markets were shut to check speculators' attacks on the franc and rising pressure against the dollar and the pound in the second international monetary crisis of 1968.

Bullion marts in London and Zurich reflected a rush for gold. In most cases, holders

COLONIST 500 FUND

Christmas Difficult For Many

By DON COLLINS

The other day someone mentioned Christmas in a normal, happy tone and Frank greeted the comment with a pleasant smile.

It was not easy. The smile served as a mask for a brave man. In years gone by, Christmas had meant much joy for Frank and his family.

But that was before the crippling illness came. This year Frank will face Christmas in a wheelchair, stripped of the earning power of a once-good tradesman and painfully sensitive to the fact his wife has had to take on the role of family leader.

"No matter what happens, Christmas will be a difficult day for him to face," said a social worker.

Frank is a young man, and accepting his illness is that much more difficult.

His four children knew him as a good provider and they respect him. They do not want him hurt any more deeply, and they refuse to show the sadness that is in each of them as Christmas approaches. They do not expect presents this year, nor do they ask for any.

There are other children like Frank's in Greater Victoria. Too many others.

But there is something else in Greater Victoria that may take just a little of the emptiness out of Christmas for these unfortunates.

It is the Colonist 500 Fund. This is the 12th consecutive year that the fund is attempting to spread a little happiness through households where happiness is missing. By Wednesday, $1,620 had been collected for that purpose.

Money donated by Colonist readers will be distributed to 500 families selected by the Christmas Bureau. The bureau is a Community Chest agency.

Last year more than $17,000 was contributed. Each family received $33.

Donations can be brought or mailed to the Colonist, 2631 Douglas. Downtown shoppers can take them to Avis-Rent-a-Car, 800 Douglas. Envelopes should bear the name of the fund.

The fund has proved popular because of two features: There are no pressure tactics and no administration costs. It is set up as an uncomplicated way of providing help at Christmas for people like Frank, his wife and their children—people facing a bleak Christmas through no fault of their own.

Upper House Doomed

● British House moves to weaken Lords. Page 9.

QUEBEC (CP) — The Quebec government Wednesday proposed legislation to abolish the legislative council and change the name of the legislative assembly to "the national assembly of the province of Quebec."

The Liberal Opposition welcomed the proposal to abolish the 101-year-old council, only provincial upper house in Canada.

The government bill for major legislative reform says:

"The legislature of the province of Quebec shall consist of the lieutenant-governor and the national assembly of the province of Quebec."

"It shall exercise all the powers vested in the legislature of the province of Quebec, consisting of the lieutenant-governor and two houses called the legislative council of Quebec and the legislative assembly of Quebec."

Opposition Leader Jean Lesage told reporters he approves the principle of the bill to abolish the upper house and

leave a single elective chamber, the same structure as

Sheriff Needs Cash To Buy More Pot

PORT ORCHARD, Wash. (AP) — Sheriff Art Morken asked the county commissioners Wednesday to provide his office with $300 so he can buy "some pot."

He said his deputies had to continually dig into their own pockets for money to pay informers to make "buys" from people peddling marijuana, so they could be caught.

Manned Trip to Moon 'Risky, Silly, Wasteful'

LONDON (AP) — A leading British space expert said Wednesday night that on a scientific basis the plan by the United States to send three astronauts around the moon this Christmas is dangerous, silly and wasteful.

Sir Bernard Lovell, director of the Jodrell Bank Observatory, which has specialized in tracking moon shots, made the comment in a television interview with the BBC.

"On a scientific basis this project is wasteful and silly," Lovell said. "We've reached the stage with automatic landings when it's not necessary to risk human life to get information about the moon."

"Within a few years this information could be obtained by automatic, unmanned instruments."

Lovell said "the worst hazards" of the Christmas flight already have been pointed out by the U.S. National Aeronautics and Space Administration. Lovell listed these as:

"When the astronauts eject from lunar orbit they might not be able to return to earth because of engine failure."

"There is a risk of radiation from the sun."

"When they do return to earth the very high speed of re-entry much higher than on previous flights, must be dangerous."
